What Religion Means to Me

MR. W. T. STRAITH

Christ, Greatest Gift Of All the Ages

This is the seventh of a series of articles by well-known Victorians on the meaning of everyday religion in various walks of life. They will appear daily.

By W. T. STRAITH, M.L.A.
Lawyer, Former Minister of Education.

It is good for us, at intervals, to stop and take stock of ourselves, of our spiritual heritage; and it is particularly appropriate at the Christmas season. Indeed, in this western world we are very richly endowed with material things in contrast to peoples of other continents; and we have come to think of these things too much as products of our human efforts and too little as the bounty from a higher and divine source.

We hear many thinking people decrying Christmas because it appears to have degraded into a mutual exchange of material gifts, many of which are extravagant and superfluous. To people who think thus, it appears that the world around them has forgotten that Christmas has, as its heart and soul, the memory of the greatest "Gift" of all time, 2,000 years ago. If we should forget and neglect this central meaning of Christmas, then this festive season could become just a pagan and material celebration; but, I am not a sceptic in this regard for we are surrounded by ample evidence to the contrary. The first Christmas was celebrated by the gift of a Child, and as long as this season remains child-centred and manger-centred, our own children will help us to keep the emphasis on the sacred and religious nature of the annual celebrations.

New Emphasis on the Deeper Value

It is true, of course, that much of our time is occupied just before Christmas in worries about our purchases; and a great many people find their period of greatest business activity at this season. However, a multitude of our people also finds gainful employment throughout the year, and particularly in December, in preparation for the Christmas period; and their dinner pails are important, too.

But apart from these material considerations, a new emphasis is found at the end of each year upon the richer and deeper values in life—particularly I would mention the enrichment of home and family relationships; to say nothing of the outpouring of generosity toward those who are in need. This latter characteristic of the Christmas season, with its refining influence for the donors, probably yields greater benefit in the spiritual satisfaction to them, than the measure of material benefit to the recipients.

It is frequently said that a great many people see the interior of their churches only twice a year—at Easter and at Christmas. If such be the case, then we can hardly over-

Mainland Action Seen For Chiang Forces

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—The head of the U.S. military assistance advisory group today hinted broadly that he expects to see Nationalist Chinese forces in action next year.

Maj-Gen. William Chase told a cheering luncheon-group: "I make no promises and no prophecies, but I think business will pick up next year—and I think you know what I mean."

President Chiang Kai-shek presided. Chase said he had talked with President-elect Eisenhower, particularly about the Nationalist armed forces, when Eisenhower visited Korea.

Earlier today Chiang told 54,000 officers and men of his Nationalist armed forces that he hoped they would be able next year to complete their preparations for a return to the Red-held mainland.

Russia Blamed for Death of 15,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressional committee recommended today that Russia be arraigned before the International Court on charges of murdering 15,000 Poles during the Second World War in the Katyn forest massacre.

In a report to the House, a special committee which investigated the killings in eastern Russia said also that the incoming Congress should undertake an immediate investigation of Communist atrocities against United Nations troops in Korea.

City Would Tax Workers Who Reside Out of Town

Currie Findings Won't Change Cabinet - PM

Rejects Reports 'Shuffles' in Wind

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today there will be no cabinet shuffles arising from the Currie Report.

Talking with reporters after a three-hour cabinet session, he was asked about reports that Defense Minister Claxton might be moved to another portfolio, making other shifts necessary. He replied:

"There have been no such suggestions made to me and if there were I wouldn't be disposed to consider them."

Mr. St. Laurent said the Currie report was not among the subjects discussed at the cabinet session today but that it is under consideration and will remain under consideration until the army conditions it portrays are corrected.

The report, pivot of a hot parliamentary controversy, describes "a general breakdown" in the army's work services. All three parties on the opposition side of the Commons have demanded that Mr. Claxton be shifted from the defense portfolio as a result of it.

Savage Storm Whips Crippled CPR Freighter

A savage storm with winds in excess of 60 miles an hour drove mountainous seas against the crippled CPR freighter Maple Cove today as the Victoria deep-sea tug Island Sovereign closed the gap between the two ships to 500 miles.

The tug is plowing through heavy weather but making good time, and is expected to reach the ship late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

Maple Cove was due in Vancouver today, but her rudder broke down Thursday, and a jury rig failed. The crew is still endeavoring to make temporary repairs pending arrival of the tug.

The weather ship St. Catharines reported gale force winds ranging from 60 knots to 38 knots, and a storm center moving toward the B.C. coast. A second storm is making behind the present disturbance, promising continued heavy winds in the area where Maple Cove awaits help.

When Island Sovereign reaches the ship, she will put a line aboard and keep the freighter on the proper course. Both ships will use their engines, the freighter easing to a speed a little slower than the tug, to keep the tow line taut.

Brodie Twins Continue to Fight for Life

CHICAGO (AP)—The Brodie Stamese twins aren't gaining in their tenacious fight for life.

The Illinois hospital where the head-joined twins were separated in a 12-hour 40-minute operation Wednesday reported in a Sunday afternoon bulletin:

"The condition of Rodney, the stronger of the two 15-month-old twins, remains critical. The condition of Roger is still precarious and his struggle for existence seems to have come to a complete halt. There has been no change for the better or worse in the last 15 hours."

"The condition of the boys apparently is static, but a change for the better or worse may occur momentarily. We're heartened by their remarkable stamina and that they've clung to life this long."

Fisherman 67th Gas Death in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Gust Jalmar Johnson, 65-year-old fisherman, was found dead in his gas-filled room Sunday. Both jets of a gas plate were turned on full. It was the 67th gassing death in Vancouver this year.

He's Ready for Long Flight

A world traveller at the age of five, Lars-Erik Sandstrom was ready today to step aboard a Trans-Canada Airlines plane at Patricia Bay airport—his destination, Copenhagen. Lars-Erik will make the 6,500-mile journey all by himself, but stewardesses, captains, and co-pilots will keep a watchful eye on him as he flies TCA to New York, and Scandinavian Air Lines the rest of the way. The little fellow is no stranger to air travel, as he flew here from Holland with his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hansen four months ago. He is going to visit his grandmother, Mrs. Laurene Hansen, in Copenhagen, and his mother hopes to join him later. He will arrive in Denmark Christmas Eve. Arrangements for Lars-Erik's trip were made by Capital Travel Service. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

BENNETT REVIVES PATTULLO PLAN

Former Liberal Premier Launched Move
To Take Over Yukon Territory in 1937

By GORDON FORBES

In proposing northward extension of British Columbia to take in the Yukon, Premier W. A. C. Bennett is reviving an idea first pursued by ex-premier T. D. "Duff" Pattullo in 1937.

Threat on Life Of New Zealand Prime Minister

AUCKLAND (AP)—Police threw a special guard around Prime Minister Sidney Holland of New Zealand here today following a threat on his life.

The prime minister arrived in Auckland Sunday night after attending the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London, and left for Wellington. There was no sign of any incident.

Police did not disclose how the threat against Holland's life was made, nor how they learned of it.

PRINCE CHARLES EXPRESSES DOUBTS ABOUT SANTA CLAUS

LONDON (AP)—A crisis is reported building up in Buckingham Palace: Prince Charles is beginning to have his doubts about Santa Claus.

Word from the palace is that the four-year-old heir to the throne is beginning to ask some awkward questions. His grandmother was said to have emerged from one recent question-and-answer session with the word: "This is the last Christmas Charles will believe in Santa Claus."

Nevertheless, taking no chances, Charles has sent off a full list of requests to the North Pole.

'M' gettin' used t' bein' taxed fer livin' in places, but under the new charter Victoria aims t' tax y' fer NOT livin' there.

See where B.C. an' Alberta want t' take in part o' th' Yukon's population. They won't be th' first folks taken in by Social Credit.

Them robbers at th' bakery might's well haw marked that safe, 'not t' be opened till Christmas."

Red Proposal Against U.S. Rejected by UN

Would Blame U.S. In PW Deaths

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations Assembly in a wearied, pre-dawn vote today turned down a Russian demand for condemnation of the United States for the alleged mass murder of Communist prisoners on Pongam Island in Korea.

Immediately after—at 4:45 a.m.—the assembly adjourned until Feb. 24, after the inauguration of President-elect Eisenhower of the U.S.

Red-eyed after a tense all-night debate, assembly delegates voted 45 "nays" to five Soviet bloc "yeas" against the Russian proposal. Ten members of the Arab-Asian bloc abstained. The other three in that group—Iraq, Lebanon, and Thailand—voted against the Soviet move.

The Soviet bloc gained no support outside of its own tight little group for the resolution, which was denounced by U.S. delegate Ernest A. Gross as a "sickening" and "shabby mid-night propaganda stunt."

Gross, replying to charges launched at midnight Saturday by Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko, said the riot on Dec. 14 in which 87 persons were killed was engineered to help the Kremlin cover up the fact that "the aggressors and their sponsors have rejected peace in Korea."

He said the guards fired at the rioting Reds to quell them and to avoid greater casualties.

Secrecy Clouds Globemaster Crash Probe

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (UP)—High-ranking air force investigators were to examine the grisly wreckage of a C-124 Globemaster today to determine what caused the big plane to crash Saturday and take 86 of its passengers to their death.

The investigating team—which includes four generals—ordered a strict blanket of secrecy thrown over their investigation of the crash.

All survivors, excluding the most serious cases, are being thoroughly questioned. Many are wondering if they will be released in time to go home for Christmas. Authorities said at least six of the 30 survivors are in serious condition.

The air force has released the names of 41 victims and said the remainder will be released as quickly as possible.

The huge plane crashed into the sage-brush dotted desert of central Washington moments after taking off in a snowstorm from Larson Air Force base for Kelly Air Force base, San Antonio, Tex.

The big plane, carrying servicemen home for the holidays, faltered as it reached the end of the runway, labored about 100 feet into the air, then shuddered to earth with a tearing crash. Gasoline from its huge wing tanks spilled onto the frozen ground and burst into flames.

Royal Family Entrains for Sandringham

LONDON (AP)—The Queen left by train today to spend Christmas at the Royal estate in Sandringham.

Gay holiday crowds at King's Cross railway station saw the Royal party off and serenaded them with shouts of "Happy Christmas."

The Queen, wearing a grey suit with a three-quarter-length coat, was accompanied by her two children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, her sister Princess Margaret and her grandmother, Queen Mary.

The Duke of Edinburgh flew to Sandringham Sunday. The Queen Mother will join the family Tuesday.

New Charter Aimed at Commuters

Power to tax persons earning their living in Victoria but residing outside city limits will be asked of the provincial government by Victoria City Council.

City Solicitor Arthur Patton gave notice today of an application to be made to the government at its next session for a private act for Victoria, and the tax move is one of six concessions sought.

The corporation also wants power to permit car passing on the right where street lanes are provided.

Council approved the application at a special "in camera" session following a regular council meeting.

NO DISCUSSION

No discussion as to possible imposition of the tax on outsiders working in Victoria took place, according to Ald. Brent Murdoch, one of the strongest opponents to the existing poll tax on city residents.

"It would be four times as bad as the poll tax," he said today. "However I am not opposed to the city having the power, but I would oppose imposition unless the city was facing very unusual circumstances."

Ald. Murdoch felt city business men would wind up paying any tax levied at outsiders working in the city. He said owing to the shortage of skilled help, a business man would have to agree to pay the tax before people would take jobs.

LONG-STANDING PLAIN

The city fathers have for years vigorously protested the situation whereby persons "working and earning their living in the city, reside outside and pay nothing for maintenance of facilities they use daily."

The private act is being sought also:

To validate an agreement between the corporation and Hallet and Carey (B.C.) Limited, purchasers of Ogden Point grain elevator providing for continuance of a fixed valuation on the elevator, for municipal taxation purposes;

To obtain powers to set aside corporate lands for auto-parking for employees, officials and persons doing business with the corporation;

To obtain powers to deal with buildings to be erected and used exclusively for auto-parking.

To repeal a section of the 1923 Victoria City Act whereby the onus of providing plans in cases of requests for tax exemption on church property, is placed on the applicant rather than the city works department.

At present, applicants provide the plans but the city has no power to enforce it.

Two Seattle Men Die in Air Crash

SEATTLE (UP)—Two persons were killed Sunday when a light plane crashed south of Seattle.

One of the victims was identified as Stephen Boyd of Seattle, pilot-of-the-plane. The other was identified as 88-year-old L. O. Helgeson, also from Seattle.

OH FOR THE 'LIFE' OF FIDO!

New 'Fountain of Youth' Serum Going to the Dogs

VIENNA (Reuters)—Dr. Freidrich Kubasta, a veterinary surgeon, claims he has found a "fountain of life" for dogs.

Kubasta said Sunday he had developed his rejuvenating serum working on the basis of the "long life" serum ACS antireticular cytotoxic serum for humans, discovered by the late Russian scientist Alexander Bogomolev.

He used it on several breeds of dogs, ridding them of all signs of old age. All the dogs had been carefully watched and months after the cure there was no sign of old age returning.

In one case a 12-year-old dog, suffering from failing sight, lack of energy and bad temper, recovered after seven weeks' treatment with the serum. It regained its sight, was lively and good tempered—and lost the grey hairs around its muzzle.

500 in Danger As Waves Pound French Vessel

Giant Crack in Hull of Ship

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP)—The grounded French liner Champollion, pounded by breakers as it listed on a shifting sandbank, tonight was almost broken in two. Her 500 passengers are still aboard.

Watchers lining the shore saw a giant crack in the 12,546-ton vessel's hull widening as the waves thrashed into her.

Several attempts have been made to guide the ship's lifeboats through the raging surf. One boatload of sailors finally got through, hauling a line up on the beach. But the cable snapped before any of the passengers could be brought ashore.

Most of the passengers are Christmas pilgrims to the Holy Land.

Israeli civil and naval crafts were standing by in Haifa, 75 miles south of here, ready to go to the liner's assistance following the outcome of diplomatic negotiations involving Lebanese and French authorities and the United Nations armistice commission.

The Champollion is in Lebanese waters. Lebanon and Israel still are technically at war, under an armistice.

The Champollion was listing at a 20-degree angle about 600 yards offshore.

Province-Wide Quebec Strike May Be Called

QUEBEC (CP)—The Canadian Catholic Congress of Labor Sunday decided to call a general province-wide strike unless negotiations to end the dispute at Louiseville, Que., are successful and provincial police officers are immediately withdrawn from the town.

Some 200 delegates to the meeting, held behind closed doors, adopted the principle of a resolution calling for a general work stoppage, leaving to the CCCL executive body and a committee of representatives of affiliated syndicates the task of fixing strike conditions.

Three other resolutions were also drawn up and adopted.

1. Immediate withdrawal of provincial police from Louiseville and the arrest of special officer Paul Benoit and other officers who used revolvers and night sticks to disperse strikers.

2. That a royal commission of inquiry be set up to investigate the circumstances surrounding the riot act at Louiseville; and,

3. That Labor Minister Barrette insist upon the return to work of all strikers as soon as possible and to insist upon the right of the syndicate to represent the employees of the Associated Textiles and determine salaries and working conditions.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Out our way they're talking about the Chinese Cemetery again. Those who live nearby aren't happy about the way it looks. "Just a shambles," they say, "just a shambles."

They're not angry with the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Society which runs the place. They never have been angry with the operators. But for years, at regular intervals, they've wanted to have the burial ground removed to some other location. Now, in its present state of disrepair, they think they have a stronger case.

The Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Society, by common report, is willing enough to move. It has always been willing and benevolent. All it wanted was a substitute for the ground it was ready to give up.

Actually a substitute may not be necessary. The principals should have compensation for the ground. But it's doubtful if there's need now for a special Chinese Cemetery. None of the other burial parks objects to use by those members of our community and many funerals that would have gone to Harling Point a few years ago are now conducted at Royal Oak.

The old Chinese funeral is a thing of the past—a part of Victoria history that has been swallowed up in modernization. It will never be forgotten, though, by Victorians who were wide-eyed and irreverent youngsters 25 or 30 years ago. In those days the Chinese funeral was an event.

If you were a barefoot kid down at Foul Bay, you followed the procession, gazed in wonder at the Chinese band playing along the route from chairs in an open truck bed, and marveled at the paid mourners. You were told they received rewards in direct ratio to the noise of their grief.

Devil Papers

You trotted beside the funeral car, picking up the devil papers—strips of yellowish tissue perforated with punch marks which, it was said, the devils had to pass through before they could reach the spirit of the departed.

You smiled when you reached the cemetery and noticed how attendants threw pads of the devil papers into the fires by the outdoor cement altar, frustrating the evil ones if they had managed to thread-the-needle through the perforations that far.

And then you lined up at the gate, with other children, while an official passed through the crowd distributing small silver wrapped in tissue paper in a ceremony of propitiation or benevolence on behalf of the deceased.

At a later date you returned to the cemetery for what you called "Feed-the-Dead"—another ceremony. In it whole roast pigs were placed on the cement altar, prayers were said and small Chinese bowls of food were placed reverently at the heads of graves. With them went cigarettes and some sprinkling of a beverage you were told was samshui.

In earlier days, the roast pigs were left on the altar. Report had it that Indians paddled down from Discovery to recover them and have their own feasts, homeward bound on Chain or another island.

You remember the "Feed-the-Dead." You remember slipping up to the graves and picking up cigarettes, though you never thought you were grave-robbing. You'd have been a bit horrified by the idea. Then you'd sneak behind the squat brick building that housed crated bones for shipment back to China. There you'd light your smokes with sad results to those of you not long out of rompers.

Stuff Dreams Were Made of

You think back to the days when the bones were exhumed from their graves and laid beside the openings. You recall the eeriness of the operations and the nightmares that pursued you from watching them.

And, as adults, you think a little shame-facedly of your lack of delicacy in prying into such ceremonies.

Or perhaps you recall other visits to the cemetery, visits in early summer to gather wild violets blooming behind the "bone house," and to pick the wild strawberries that ripened there.

You listen to the talk about moving the graveyard; and you hear old-timers speak of Oak Bay's dusty plans to build a park there. You rather hope it will. You hope, too, that the council on Hampshire Road and the Avenue may remember that there is a part of Oak Bay lying south of Gonzales Hill.

CHRIST, GIFT OF THE AGES

estimate the spiritual and religious value of these intimate contacts with the Manger and the Cross at these salutary periods in the Christian Calendar, nor does this mean that the influence of Christian teachings and Christian principles is limited to these two short periods in the year.

We see so many manifestations of Christian influence in everyday life through we do not always attribute them, as we should, to their Christian origin and inspiration. In our conceits we sometimes like to speak and think of "social welfare" and "human betterment" as though these were the invention and product of our modern and contemporary minds. These examples of improving social justice are the Christian answer to that Biblical question "Am I my brother's keeper?" and that answer was originally given 2,000 years ago—and we have been very slow in realizing and effecting its implications for human kind. The Biblical parable of the Good Samaritan was rank heresy when it was spoken, but because we are gradually learning and believing its lessons we are daily able to see that parable exemplified all around us. We should not forget—and particularly at this Christmas season—that we are not the authors of these charitable deeds and charitable thinking; but that these are just reflections of the Mind and heart of Him who spoke that parable. Let us at this festive and busy time remember and give thanks to Him whose birthday we celebrate.

Cuban Navy Breaks Up Coup Plot

HAVANA (AP)—The Cuban Navy says nine of its retired officials and one naval non-com have been arrested for plotting armed rebellion against the government of President Fulgencio Batista.

The 10, including a former naval chief and his two top aides, were jailed in the military prison in the fortress at the entry of Havana harbor, the announcement said Saturday night.

The announcement followed the arrest of four men and seizure of arms at Mamorene, N.Y., in a reported plot to stage a "Christmas revolt" against the Cuban government.

The sheriff of Westchester County, New York, said one of the men arrested there, a munition dealer, said the arms cache was being built up for Cuba's ex-President Carlos Prío Socarrás, ousted by Batista in a coup last March 10. He now lives in Florida and has denied knowledge of the plot.

Record Total Of Free Food Given Needy

Pre-Christmas distribution of food to 137 needy families at the surplus food stall in the Public Market Saturday was termed "a marvelous demonstration of Victoria generosity" by Mrs. Barbara Green, stall operator.

She stated the number of families helped set an all-time record since the stall's inception, with recipients getting an average of more than $10 worth of goods.

Turkey or fowl was given the larger families and foods distributed included bacon, potatoes and other vegetables, eggs, mince, meat, powdered milk, cheese, flour, sugar, bread, rolls.

Youngsters who attended a special Saturday matinee at the Odeon paid admission with food-stuffs instead of money, and provided a major contribution to the stall—a truckload of canned meat, and vegetables.

Aiding Mrs. Green in packing, packaging and distribution were volunteers, including members of Royal Arcanum Society and the Girl Guides.

TO REJOIN TRIBE

CLEVELAND (AP)—Bob Kennedy, home on Christmas leave from the marines, said Saturday he will be discharged next week and will rejoin the Cleveland Indians next spring.

Oakalla Prison Said 'School for Crime'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A government statement accompanied a front-page story in the Vancouver Province Saturday which said Oakalla in suburban Burnaby "has been allowed to degenerate into a finishing school for crime, addiction and perversion."

The Province said newspaper men were granted an uncensored tour of the provincial jail on the understanding a government statement would accompany their reports.

The statement, signed by Attorney-General Robert Bonner, was reproduced on the front page. It said:

"As a result of a recent inspection of Oakalla, I am personally acquainted with most of the conditions which are described in the following article.

"In the new year your government proposes to institute a comprehensive program of penal reform in this province, towards which a step already has been taken in the planning for immediate erection of additional facilities for housing prisoners, and a substantial increase made in the number of guards employed, at the Oakalla site itself.

Bruce Larsen, a Province staff writer, said that conditions at Oakalla were "so appalling" as to defy belief.

A similar story was told by Jim Smith and Jack Wasserman of the Sun. The reporters spent some days making the prison survey.

The Province reporter said conditions at the prison included:

Severe overcrowding that prevents segregation or treatment. Drug smuggling on a scale surpassing anything in any Canadian institution.

Drug habits started within the prison.

Widespread sex perversion.

Inmates controlling sections of the prison.

A locking system that convicts can foul at will.

Constant fear of an epidemic from extreme insanitation, pests and rodents.

Vicious inmate-directed beatings.

Misuse of government property.

Fire hazards highlighted by one wooden building, holding 186 prisoners, which has often been condemned as a fire-trap.

Gambling and drinking by inmates.

A primitive excuse for a hospital.

Dewey Soriano, general manager of the Vancouver Caplans of the Western International Baseball League, may take a turn or two at pitching for the Caps in the 1953 campaign.

Murderer, Six Convicts Make Escape Good

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (BUP)—Seven convicts, one of them a murderer, escaped from the Washington state penitentiary today by tunneling their way 200 feet under the wall.

Warden John Cranor said all were "maximum security men." One, Harold Coe, was serving a life sentence for the murder of a traveling salesman.

Cranor identified the convicts as Coe, Robert Cameron, Robert Palmer, Glen Wahl, Merrill Kase, Ralph Courser and Harry Bein. Cranor said Coe and Palmer were the "worst of the lot."

Palmer was serving time for assault. Cranor said Palmer had boasted he would never be taken alive again.

The convicts, who worked in the power plant shoveling coal and ashes, dug from the ash pit to a spot outside the north wall between towers 3 and 8.

The tunnel was about 15 feet under the surface of the ground and was 200 feet long.

Cranor said "Obviously the digging has been going on for months. We can't answer questions as to how they succeeded in digging that hole. Our faces are very red."

Stalin Is 73

Russia and the Communist satellite countries joined in eulogizing Joseph Stalin on his 73rd birthday Sunday. In Russia the day was a regular working day, only presents were promises of more production.

At a Warsaw theatre performance in honor of the event the audience stamped and shouted "Stalin" for solid half-hour.

Mother, Four Children Die In House Fire

CHICOPEE, Mass. (UP)—A mother and her four children died early today and the father of the family was badly burned when an explosion and fire roared through their six-room frame house.

The charred bodies of Mrs. Dorothy Hoyt, 32, and three of the children were found in their beds, indicating they were overcome by smoke or the shock of the blast before they could attempt to save themselves.

The body of a fourth child was found under a bed.

Fire Chief Peter Gula said a preliminary investigation showed the explosion was caused by a leaky gas line in the two-story house.

The father, a 34-year-old mason, was hospitalized in Holyoke in "only fair condition" with severe burns and cuts on his upper body.

Yeggs Get $8,000 From B.C. Company

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C.—Safecrackers obtained between $6,000 and $8,000 in cash and cheques when they broke into the Columbia Street store of Phillips Radio and Furniture Company.

The theft was discovered today when the staff reported for work. The burglars saved the bars of a rear window.

Seven Named to Guide Cathedral Campaign

Seven well-known Victorians have accepted positions on a campaign committee for the completion of Christ Church Cathedral.

Dr. Harold E. Sexton, Bishop of B.C., announced in a radio address Sunday.

Members of the committee are E. W. Arnott, Dean Philip R. Beattie, Dr. F. T. Fairley, Stuart Keate, R. H. B. Ker, Col. A. G. Styles and F. E. Winslow.

Organizing secretary of the campaign will be Maurice Hesford, CA.

Mr. Hesford will have his campaign offices at 211 Jones Block, Fort Street. While this office will not be open until January 2, mailed contributions to the fund will be received at that address from now on.

First step in the Cathedral completion campaign will be the finishing of the west (front) end, and in particular the two incomplete towers facing on Quadra Street.

"It is well known that for the last 20 years our Cathedral has stood as an unfinished House of God, obviously incomplete and even unsightly," the Archbishop declared in his radio talk.

When completed, the Archbishop said, the Cathedral would be "the Dominion's largest and most glorious shrine—a great cathedral of simple, massive beauty and attractiveness, and an outstanding landmark about our Island shores, extending a Christian greeting to all who see it from afar or near."

700 Seek Clemency For Condemned U.S. Atom Spies

OSSING, N.Y. (AP)—A delegation of more than 700 persons seeking clemency for condemned atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg has been intercepted by police and not permitted near Sing Sing prison.

Seven members of the group, with police permission, Sunday approached the gates of the penitentiary where the man-and-wife spy team is to be executed the week of Jan. 11.

Outside the walls they deposited a large basket of flowers with the message: "Greetings to Ethel and Julius Rosenberg from the people."

Hours later the flowers remained untouched in the cold, drizzling rain of the winter day.

The delegation travelled in an eight-car special train from New York. It was sponsored by the Civil Rights Congress.

'NOT ENOUGH POWER TO TAKE OFF'

Survivor of History's Worst Air Crash Gives His Reasons

MOSES LAKE, Wash. (AP)—A U.S. air force captain who survived aviation's worst crash believes the plane "had not developed enough power to complete the take-off."

The opinion was expressed Sunday by Capt. George Demas, who has had considerable heavy-plane flying experience.

Demas was en route home for Christmas when a giant Globemaster crashed here with a loss of 86 lives Saturday.

The captain said he was third from the end in the lower deck of the tail section at the start of the ill-fated trip. He told this story:

"As we were going down the runway I had a peculiar feeling based on long experience in flying heavy planes that we were staying too long on the ground."

"I became convinced of this when I felt the plane bounce at the end of the runway and it seemed that the plane had not developed enough power to complete the take-off."

"At this point the pilot apparently tried to yank it into the air before it was too late to reverse the propellers and stop it.

"When the pilot tried to lift it off the ground I could feel the plane balloon a sharp rise like going up in an elevator and then she started to settle—or mush as they call it."

"Then the pilot turned sharp to the left and that suggested to me he was attempting to come back to the runway. I looked out the window at that point and estimated we were about 75 feet in the air. Before he completed the turn, the pilot apparently changed his mind and then it all happened. I don't recall too clearly what came next but I saw a gaping hole in the tail section and I dropped through it to the ground."

seven persons to receive the Stalin awards.

The award went to Endicott for "strengthening peace among nations."

Mary Jennison, executive secretary of the Canadian Peace Congress, said in Toronto she was "proud" to learn of the award.

She said Endicott probably would be "flabbergasted" when he learned of it.

"It is certainly a great personal honor for Dr. Endicott and also for the Canadian peace movement," she said.

One of the prizes went to Soviet journalist Ilya Ehrenburg, the first Soviet citizen to receive one. The awards were established on Stalin's 70th birthday three years ago.

Another winner was American singer Paul Robeson who was hailed as "the standard bearer of the oppressed Negro people."

Others were: Eliza Branco, a textile worker and member of the Federation of Brazilian Women.

Saif Uddin Kichu, a politician and chairman of the Indian Council of Peace.

Johannes Becher, East German author and poet.

Yves Farge, a French newsman and head of the French peace fighters movement. (He represented the French press at the American Bikini atom bomb test in 1946).

Endicott Can Bring Stalin's Prize Home

OTTAWA (BUP)—Dr. James G. Endicott of Toronto was awarded a $25,000 Stalin peace prize on the Soviet premier's 73rd birthday Sunday and a government spokesman said today there is no law that would prevent him from accepting and bringing it into this country.

Endicott, chairman of the Communist-front Canadian Peace Congress, now is in Vienna attending a similar congress rally. The Austrian legation here had warned that Canadians attending the congress would not be made welcome by the Austrian government.

The government spokesman said he could see "no legal reason" why Endicott could not accept the 100,000-ruble award. He did not believe there would be any difficulty, either, in converting the money into Canadian funds if the award were paid in Russian currency.

The spokesman said that since the award was a straight "prize," there was nothing in the statutes that would prevent Endicott from bringing the money home.

The awards were announced in Moscow. Endicott, a former United Church minister once described by External Affairs Minister Lester Pearson as "a man below contempt," was one of

Wages—Canadian and American

A PART FROM THE WAGE AND freight rate questions immediately in dispute, the recent report of the Canadian railway conciliation board is worth studying. It lays down an economic principle which must govern not only the railways but most of Canada's industries. The principle, in brief, is that industries here cannot pay the same wages as similar industries in the United States. The board rejects out of hand the theory of automatic wage parity in the two neighboring countries.

For many years Canadian-American wage parity has been a major objective of the Canadian labor movement. The conciliation board, headed by Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Canadian Supreme Court, says this is impossible in the case of railways. While the board was not directly concerned with anything but railways the judgment thus rendered has an almost universal application in this country. There may be some special industries which can afford to pay American wage scales because their circumstances are peculiar, but they must be very few.

The rejection of the principle of wage parity is contained in the majority report of the conciliation board, signed by Mr. Justice Kellock and Mr. Paul S. Smith. Mr. David Lewis, the third member and spokesman of labor, does not attempt to defend wage parity. Understanding the facts, he could not. The majority and minority reports disagree on what wages should be paid in the Canadian railway trades. They do not quarrel on the proposition that those wages cannot equal American wages.

The majority report contains a preliminary analysis of general application in the Canadian economy. It points out that Canada's exports in 1951 represented 18.4 per cent of its gross product, its total output of goods and services; whereas exports represented only 4.6 per cent of the United States' output.

"To a much greater extent," the report says, "Canadian prices are determined in a world market and not internally. The smaller domestic market for many of its products, together with the greater dependence on outside markets for the disposal of so much of its product, creates of itself a fundamental difference in the economy of Canada when compared with the United States and provides an explanation of the higher level of wages in the latter country."

In other words, Canada must keep its wages and resulting production costs low enough so that its export prices will meet the competition of the world market. The United States, however, sells most of its goods within its own boundaries and is much less subject to world prices.

If this is true of railways it is true of every exporting industry. But all other industries are involved in the same circumstances, since none of them can escape the prosperity or the depression of the great exporting industries. For example, no industry in British Columbia, not even the smallest business concern, can isolate itself from a decline in the lumber, fishing or mineral industries, which live largely on exports.

The conciliation board report goes on to analyze the position of the railways in detail, showing that they earn less per mile of line than the American railways and yet have to pay more for nearly all their supplies. Without going into the figures it can be seen that these facts are generally true, with individual variations, in the Canadian economy as a whole—and for a simple and obvious reason: The reason is that the Canadian economy, increasingly rich as it is, cannot yet produce as much for every hour of labor as the American economy.

The Canadian economy is less productive mainly because it does not possess as much machine power as the American or the local mass market which reduces costs by mass production methods. As our young industrial system matures, as it acquires more machinery and denser markets, it will produce as much as the American man-hour of labor but that is some time ahead.

In the meantime if an economy producing less goods per hour of labor than its neighbor attempts to pay the same wages only one result can follow—costs and prices must rise above the American level. The Canadian exports cannot compete in the American or in the general world markets. We would have higher paper wages canceled out by higher prices, reduced sales, smaller output and less jobs.

If the process were pushed far enough we would go broke trying to enrich ourselves by the wrong method. We could smash the Canadian economy by loading it with costs which, physically, it cannot carry. In short, there can be no real wage parity until there is productive parity.

Jolting Complacency

INTRODUCTION OF A GOVERNMENT bill against racial and other discrimination in employment fields will surprise many Canadians. They will be disturbed to learn that conditions in this nation make such legislation necessary.

The measure, outlined to the Commons by Labor Minister Gregg, asks consideration of an act "to prevent discrimination in regard to employment and membership in trade unions by reason of race, national origin or religion."

While limited in its scope because of the restricted jurisdiction of the federal government in the labor field, discussion of the bill invites Canadians to look a little more closely into their own society.

There have been cases in which color bars have been raised against patrons in such places as barber shops in Ontario. There are instances, moreover, of "gentlemen's agreements" of an anti-semitic nature closer to home.

These have been taken, for the most part, as exceptions proving the rule of general Canadian understanding of the racial question. The opposition shown by the public to such discrimination has been regarded as a healthy sign of this country's democracy.

The new bill implies more sinister conditions. If it is necessary to pass an act through Parliament to ensure fair employment practices in respect to people of different race, color or religion, then Canadians had better do a little soul-searching. Their pride in "the true north strong and free" cannot be whole if part of the population is denied the freedom to make a living in legal and accepted ways.

On the other hand, if conditions are such that different racial or religious groups in the country need protection from discrimination, the government does well to see that their interests are safeguarded. The proposed act will help to accomplish that purpose.

Appeal From Contempt

THE SENATE'S AMENDMENTS to the Criminal Code to permit appeals from contempt of court rulings will be generally applauded in this country. For too many years a gap has existed in our legal processes, virtually denying the principle which allows every convicted person the right to appeal provided he can prove grounds for reconsideration of his case.

That anomaly is being removed, as it should be. Contempt can carry with it severe penalties. Those penalties can be imposed by a presiding judge under authority little short of a dictator's. From his decision there has been no recourse to another tribunal.

Here, surely, is an obvious invitation to injustice wherever a judge reaches his decision in error.

The Senate, appreciating that fact, has wisely moved to eliminate an anachronism in judicial practice.

The action follows another significant change in legal procedure by which Parliament is preparing to remove the old barrier to litigation against the Crown. The Crown, which means the government, could be sued only with permission in the form of a fiat. Unless the fiat was granted, no suit could be started. By eliminating the fiat the government will have dealt with another outworn form. The citizen will be granted greater freedom in recourse to law when he considers himself aggrieved by the Crown.

The Price of Dignity—$15

PEOPLE OF CULTURE AND REFINEMENT will note the delicacy of an American plastics manufacturer who claims to have obtained rights to the calendar art photograph of Miss Marilyn Monroe.

The picture of the young lady, according to a Hollywood story, was taken at a time when she was hungry and behind in her rent. In these straits, it is alleged, she consented to pose undraped, and reportedly agreed to let the picture be used for advertising and commercial purposes.

Miss Monroe does not appear at all hungry now. Nor will readers of the movie magazines think that she is behind in her rent. And according to news stories, she objects strenuously to the suggestion of the plastics manufacturer that her form be paraded on bar trays.

This, it appears, is a different Marilyn from the erstwhile model.

Yet it must not be assumed that the plastics manufacturer is devoid of scruples or blind to the finer things. Quite the contrary. He plans to limit the distribution of Marilyn Monroe trays to places "with a lot of class and dignity," such as bars of bachelors and lovers of art. To prove his good intentions he argues he would be charging $15 apiece for the trays. That price, it seems, would make them objects of art.

Few Victorians may want to include the trays in this year's Christmas gift list, but a significant fact has been laid down for posterity. It is now possible to determine the economic measurements of those former intangibles, "class" and "dignity." The plastics manufacturer has set the standard—fifteen dollars.

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

WE HAD an ancient carol last time, so I think we had better sing a very modern carol today, if Miss Clutterbuck is ready at the piano. Now, then, class, together:

A MODERN CAROL
In Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-Two
On Christmas Eve his whistle blew
And Santa Claus arose from his bunk
To find the rascal, he still was drunk
He'd spent the day with the King of the Elves.

The head of a people that do themselves
Exceedingly well in songs and sherry,
And the saint for once in his life WAS merry . . .

Sang Christmas shanties with love and labor.
Like "What'll we do with a drunken neighbor?"

(A shanty called, as the Elves should know),
Alternatively "Haul away, Joe"
Sang "Billy Boy" (who walked all day)
Through stores like Eaton's and Hudson's Bay.

Where the state of Billy Boy's mind was such
That nothing kitted his fancy much.

Well, Santa went home to regain his grip
On what he knew of reindeerdomship
For his annual feat of magic travelling
But all of his thoughts just kept un-ravelling.

He loaded his sleigh and off he flew,
And jingly Christmas, how it flew!
The parcels and he were mixed already,
But even the route became unsteady.
Lost and bleary, vague and shivering,
In desperate mood he began delivering.
And the gifts his stubbornness made him choose.

Were things a recipient couldn't use.
His logic all turned topsy-turvy.
Note the keel-upwards things he'd serve us:

Scented talcum for men, O Hedges;
Blue jean trousers for delicate ladies;
Guns for kiddies, plus sexy tales;
Whisky for women in quarts and pails;
Free divorces for getting cross;
Profits for all except the boss;
Big hangovers at Christmas dawn;
Contempt for the half-known things now gone.

Rent-free houses for men made poor
By taxes raised to make men secure;
An education for every chap
Ineducable by any hap.

And when he got through with an immense town.
The whole damned system was upside down.

Thank you, class, you sang that with great feeling. Thank you, Miss Clutter-buck, you may go home now.

CLARNETS BE BAD

Talking of Christmas music (now that Miss Clutterbuck has gone), do you remember Thomas Hardy's village choir that toured the farms at midnight on Christmas Eve, complete with orchestra?
They were about "the last in the country of the old string-players" and they were pretty bitter about this. They felt it was the introduction of clarinets and other wind instruments that had paved the way for church organs. "Barrel-organs, and they next door to 'em that you blow with your foot, have come in terribly of late years."

One of them said a kind word for the serpent. Have you ever seen a serpent?
It is a large wooden horn, shaped like the letter S, and covered with black leather. "There's worse things than serpents," said Mr. Penny. "Old things pass away, 'tis true; but a serpent was a good old note; a deep rich tone was the serpent."

"Clar'nets, however, be bad at all times," said Michael Mail. "One Christmas . . . years ago now, years . . . I went the rounds 'til the Dibblech choir.
'Twas a hard frosty night, and the keys of all the clar'nets froze . . . ah, they did freeze! . . . so that 'twas like drawing a cork every time a key was opened;
the players of 'em had to go into a hedge and ditcher's chimney corner and thaw their clar'nets every now and then.
An' 't'wixt o'f spe' huns down from the end of every man's clar'net a span long;
and as to f'iners . . . well, there, if ye'll believe me, we had no fingers at all to our knowledge."

If that doesn't sound wintry, Christmassy, and old-fashioned, what more do you want at Christmas anyhow? Me.
I love it. I love all atmosphere got across to the reader by good dialogue.
Especially Christmas atmosphere from Christmas dialogue. For example, it isn't so much the food and drink and laughter at Mr. Pickwick's Christmas at Dingley Dell that makes the scene come all alive and Christmassy, as it is the farm-hand by the fire who says "How it snows!" "Snows, does it?" said Wardle. "Rough, cold night, sir," replied the man, "and there's a wind out up that drifts across the fields in a thick white cloud." . . . much these apparently simple and obvious lines improve the fire and the xmas bowl! Dickens didn't invent Christmas, as many heretics pretend. But he was a great man for getting the feel of it.

Mrs. (or Miss) Ethel A. Vincent is to be commended on her reply to your correspondent, Mr. L. J. Pepper. All those correspondents who from time to time send letters to your paper to indulge in adverse Bible-criticism remind one of the proverbial sledge-hammers lying worn out and broken around the anvil which is none the worse for all the blows it has received.

Mr. L. J. Pepper is a great believer in the evolution-theory; yet, what has evolution wrought for mankind? The evolutionist professes to believe there is no God nor miracles! Yet he believes in the most stupendous and unbelievable miracle of a mere speck of dust (without explaining how that original speck of dust got there and from where), evolving gradually in the most intricate and wonderfully ordered universe!

He should take to heart the Biblical admonition that only "the fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." The believer would sooner join the happy crowd who, within a few days, the whole world over, will celebrate the miraculous birth of a child of apparently-obscure origin of whom the angels said: "Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all peoples" because "God so loved the world that He gave His only Son—not to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved!"

And now I am going to listen to that marvelous "Handel's Messiah." Wishing you, one and all, a very happy Christmas!
L. J. ECKMAN.

RED CROSS AND CIVIL DEFENSE

Your editorial regarding the Blood Clinic Service on Vancouver Island was timely, and will, I trust, encourage more people to come forward as blood donors.

The Red Cross organization does not feel the present financial situation justifies a unit being stationed on the island.

My concern is to plan for a major disaster, for which arrangements must be made to ensure larger blood supplies being available on the island in an emergency, and with this the Red Cross is in agreement.

I want to take this opportunity of paying a tribute to the Red Cross in the Greater Victoria Target Area, who are working very closely with Civil Defense in both the medical and welfare fields.

Tried by Their Peers

New York Times

TWO years ago Vladimir Clementis was here in New York, sitting in the General Assembly as head of the Czechoslovak delegation in the United Nations. He was then foreign minister, and the big boss in the regime he faithfully served was Rudolf Slansky, secretary-general of the Communist party. Today both men, with other top leaders whose word was law at that time, have been put to death.

Actually they were sentenced before the hearings started, for following the Moscow prototype, the great purge that liquidated all the old Bolsheviks, the Communist trials try only those who are already condemned.

The orgy of confessions, in which the victims accuse themselves and one another of every form of conspiracy, corruption and treason, are stage shows, conceived and produced by perverted minds which seem to have lost all connection with reason, justice and humanity.

All that can be said of the men condemned in Prague is that they were tried by their peers. When in power they operated under the same jungle law that is now applied to them; only a little while ago they were the supreme judges meting out the same kind of "justice" to others.

But think of the people living under the terrible spiked wheel that turns on the leaders who were omnipotent yesterday and crushes them today to an ignominious death. Slansky, Clementis and their fellow victims were the infallible party spokesmen. No citizen dared to disobey their edicts or question their policy. Now they are shown up as traitors, spies and saboteurs whom no citizen dares to defend.

What can the ordinary Czech think of a government that passes—according to its own story—from one set of criminals to another?

Temporarily this self-indictment may have the effect intended by Moscow; it may strike terror into the hearts of the next in line and stamp out the last embers of independence.

But the puppets will not always dance when the end is death. The stunned audience for whom the macabre farce is played must eventually perceive the essential weakness of a power so unsure of itself that it can never trust its hand-picked servants.

A Look at the Brighter Side

By JOSEPH ALSOP, From Washington

RETURNING from a tour of inquiry abroad is always a curious experience, for there is a barrier of thought as well as an ocean barrier between Europe and America. Today, the experience is more strange than ever, for there is the added contrast between the bleak certainties, the hard, inescapable realities of the great world "problems" and the misty uncertainty, the still-fog-bound outlines of the new American administration.

If you know that great problems exist, but have no very clear idea what is going to be done about them, prediction becomes impossible. There will be no predictions, therefore, in the present final report on this correspondent's recent visit of inquiry abroad. The aim is, rather, to suggest the richness and hopefulness of President-elect Eisenhower's future opportunity for world leadership.

Newspapermen are unfortunately a bit like vultures; it is their nature to go where the trouble is. Because of this occupational necessity, previous reports in this series have stressed the enormous difficulties the new president will have to surmount, ranging from Korea to Iran, from the crisis in NATO planning to a new system of Soviet tactics aimed to split the Western Alliance.

It would be chuckedheaded to ignore these difficulties, if only because the failure to surmount any one of them is quite capable of bringing us and the Free World to more or less final disaster.

It is also wrong, however, to forget the old mountaineer's maxim (if it is not a real one, it ought to be)—"If you see a new peak ahead, it means you're halfway up the mountain." That, really, is the situation of America and her partner nations of the Western Alliance at this moment.

For almost the first time since the end of the war, the traveler abroad can note really solid progress of the kind that matters. There are the outlines, at any rate, of a western system that can survive, can go forward, and can repel the pressures of the Soviet system. There are the symptoms, at least, that this western system is settling down for the long pull, which is the most important thing of all.

CHANGE OF ATMOSPHERE

The first thing to strike the traveler is the least definable—a change of atmosphere. There are plenty of ugly things in the atmosphere of Europe today, such as increasing anti-Americanism. But the climate abroad has lost the hectic flavor of the postwar period. No longer is everything improvised.

And this feeling that a kind of normality is at least returning—that every familiar landmark is not any longer likely to be blown sky-high by some crisis or other—is a great balm in itself.

This new feeling has been made possible, in turn, by the two central developments of these last years. Politically, America and her partner nations have organized a loose but effective western community or alliance, with commanding weight and power so long as it holds together. Strategically, America and her partner nations have moved, through this new western community, to construct reasonable defenses for the free world as a whole. These defenses and this community are, in effect, the great shields, behind which economic and social recovery are being achieved.

Along with this general recovery, there are many individually hopeful symptoms, such as the first sketch of a true European union that Jean Monnet is making at Luxembourg. In the world situation President-elect Eisenhower will inherit, the foundations of the future have been well laid and bits of the future are even being built already.

Short-sightedness, wrong-headedness, over-optimism can well cause all the ground so painfully gained to be lost again, and all the foundations so laboriously built to crumble and fall. But if President-elect Eisenhower offers the same sort of leadership as Gen. Eisenhower, one may hope that his administration will end like his command in war, after many sore perils in final triumph.

Ups and Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

"SOMETIMES," said the Elevator Man, "a nod can be as devastating as a shout. Anybody who ever nodded by accident at an auction sale and found himself carrying home a stuffed moose head or a five-foot shelf of the history and politics of Bechuanaland with volumes 4, 9 and 17 missing, will know what I mean. A losing boxer is often waited for the land of Nod, while the winner 'gets the nod' from the referee. And many a weary lady, momentarily drooping her head, must have found this taken as an affirmative nod by her marriage-minded swain. The tongue and lips can speak volumes, but a movement of the head can reduce all the words to nothing. 'How can I say yes?' demands the young orator. 'Use your head,' says somebody, and it's good advice. Lower main!"

"That fella," said the Elevator Man, "in New York the other day ran into trouble with his nodding, but made a good recovery. He was a flight promoter, answering questions on a witness stand. The lawyer thought he saw the witness nodding and asked, 'You're not going to sleep?' The fella straightened up with a jerk, and answered, 'I refuse to answer on my constitutional right. It might incriminate me.' He was taking no chances. Mezzanine!"

"A nod or a shake," said the Elevator Man, "is so definite. Words so often confuse you. Take that story about the chorus girl who sat close to her new boy friend and suggested, 'How about giving me a diamond bracelet?' My dear," replied her friend, "extenuating circumstances constrain me to preclude you from reception of so extravagant a bauble. The girl blinked in bewilderment. 'I don't get it,' she said. 'That's just what I said,' came the grim reply."

To Car-Driving Christmas Shoppers

This is the season of the year that the police department urges shopping motorists to take extra precaution in locking the doors of their cars when it contains packages; better still, lock the packages securely out of sight, in your trunk. Speaking of packages there are several that could come in very useful this holiday month. Voids Chlorophyll Tablets, for instance, to stop breath and body odor. Voidozen antiseptic mouth wash for that stale, fuzzy mouth and Fluradene Toothpaste with its magic tooth whitener and chlorophyll. When the rush, excitement, and late hours make you nervous, jittery or unable to sleep, take Sedicin. These products are sold at drug stores only.

EXPAND B.C.-ALBERTA

Would Move Borders North

Premiers Bennett, Manning Plan
Historic Move at Edmonton Parley

EDMONTON (CP)—The premiers of Alberta and British Columbia have agreed on the "desirability" of pushing their boundaries northward by some 350 miles.

A meeting between Premier Bennett of B.C. and Alberta's Premier Manning Saturday brought together for the first time the heads of Canada's two Social Credit governments. They also decided:

1. To press for a new deal in the allocation of responsibilities and taxation fields between the federal and provincial governments.

2. To make a joint submission to Ottawa urging construction of a 277-mile rail link between the B.C.-owned Pacific Great Eastern and the Northern Alberta Railways. This would give the Peace River region, straddling the north of both provinces, a direct outlet to the Pacific Coast.

3. To promote the orderly development of natural gas resources in the two provinces.

4. To simplify procedure in the cases of pensioners moving between Alberta and B.C.

Further extension of provincial boundaries northward to the 63rd parallel was described as becoming increasingly important to northern development.

The northern line dividing federal and provincial jurisdiction now is the 60th parallel. Extension to the 63rd would give B.C. most of the Yukon, including Whithorse and Dawson, as well as a chunk of the Northwest Territories. Alberta would get the Great Slave Lake area with its important base metal deposits, and the Yellowknife mines.

Premier Manning said development of the far north now is hindered because many of the companies operating there have their head offices in Alberta and B.C. and are incorporated under provincial law, yet have to carry out their development work under federal jurisdiction. However, "we both felt the matter to be primarily something for the people of those areas themselves to decide."

On federal-provincial relations, the premiers decided that a further conference should be convened without delay. Its purpose would be to arrive at more equitable and permanent arrangements between the provinces and the federal government, particularly in matters relating to their respective responsibilities and fields of taxation.

"We were both in complete accord that existing tax transfer agreements were only intended as temporary arrangements and do not represent a satisfactory permanent settlement between the provinces and the federal governments," Premier Manning said.

Chief feature of these agreements, negotiated as a war measure, was that most of the provinces yielded to Ottawa the exclusive right to levy income tax and in return receive annual cash payments from the federal treasury. The arrangement has been continued into peacetime.

Promote Agricultural Development

The proposed Peace River rail link would cover nearly 300 miles of rugged, mountainous territory between the PGE terminus at Prince George and the Dawson Creek terminus of the NAR, which is jointly owned by Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways.

Construction of the line would spur development of one of the country's last big agricultural areas still not fully settled. The area also has become increasingly important as a source of oil and natural gas.

The premiers gave no details of their talks on gas development. Alberta last spring approved export of gas from the Peace River region but difficulties in obtaining additional markets in the northwestern states have delayed plans to build a pipeline to the Vancouver area.

Premier Bennett was accompanied to the conference by Finance Minister Einar Gunderson. Several members of the Alberta cabinet sat with Premier Manning. The B.C. party left Sunday for Victoria.

The letter K before the license number of an airplane means it is licensed for experimental purposes.

Abbott Seen Bringing Down 'Early Budget', Possibly by Late March

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians who may be wondering about the government's tax plan likely will learn their fate a few weeks earlier in 1953.

Finance Minister Abbott said in an interview Sunday that he plans to bring down the 1953-54 budget "as early as possible."

He declined to name a date, but indication from other sources were that the budget likely will be brought down early in March.

Usually the government's budgets are introduced to parliament about the first week in April, but there have been March budgets before, most in the latter part of the month.

SPCA UNDER FIRE OF EX-PRESIDENT

E. P. Heywood Urges Executive Changes; Claims Dissension Cost Maggs' Job

Dismissal of Ben Maggs as SPCA inspector of the Victoria branch clearly indicates there is dissension among members of the organization, according to E. P. Heywood, past president of the society.

Mr. Heywood's views follow an announcement last week from the SPCA steering committee that there is no dissension within the organization over the discharge of the inspector.

Mr. Heywood was the leader of a faction which strongly opposed the election of the present executive committee at a stormy annual meeting of the society last spring.

He claims the executive "railroaded themselves into power" and pushed aside some of the society's most ardent animal lovers from the committee.

His views with regard to the discharge of Mr. Maggs differ from those of the committee members.

"Maggs is a good inspector and understands and likes animals," he said. "I agree with Maggs that it is practically impossible for one man to attend to all the multitudinous jobs around the shelter and still function as an efficient inspector."

He added, however, that when

Mr. Maggs accepted the added responsibility of manager he put himself in an impossible position. "Sooner or later he was bound to get caught up in the meshes of criticism as he had 20 people of mixed sexes and occupations who had the authority to pass on his actions and throw brickbats," said Mr. Heywood. "He inevitably reaped a whirlwind."

Stating that the affairs of the society have worked out as many predicted, Mr. Heywood appealed to the general membership of the SPCA to put in an entirely new slate of officers at the society's annual meeting in February.

"I would ask the members to put in a slate of officers who may be relied upon to put the society back in the confidence and respect of the public and have it once again function for the benefit of our dumb friends," said Mr. Heywood.

Bras d'Or Lakes, an arm of the sea which almost cuts Cape Breton island in halves, have a total area of 360 square miles.

West's Ignorance Feeding Communists, Says Minister

Communism has "stolen a march" on the western world because of the ignorance of Europe and the west generally of world conditions, according to a young Canadian churchman.

"Here in Canada I notice a marked lack of knowledge of what is happening in the rest of the world," said Robert Miller, Toronto, associate general secretary of the Student Christian Movement, who is here conferring with members of the Victoria College unit of the movement.

"It's dangerous," he said. "If we do not understand the rest of the world we cannot act intelligently toward others. Our high standard of living has set us apart from others; and now most of the world has turned against our European and Anglo-Saxon society."

Mr. Miller, a United Church minister and only 33 years of age, said the object of the SMU is to bring Christianity to students in a meaningful way.

"College students live in a world of their own," he said, "and the church must adapt itself to that life."

This is done, he said, through winter study programs and summer work projects that send students off in groups to different localities to "learn how the other fellow lives."

"A large group of students will spend the summer—for example—in an industrial locality," he said. "They will work in factories, live together, study conditions, and hear speakers from management and trade union groups."

Mr. Miller spent from 1948 to 1951 in Europe, most of the time in Western Germany and Switzerland.

His host while here is John Mounsell, president of the Victoria College unit.

Britons Make Extensive Plans for Everest Climb

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH
LONDON (AP)—Sixteen British climbers hope to reach the unconquered top of Mount Everest next year by better planning than ever has gone into mountaineering exploit.

Two military men used to operational staff work have been given the job of master-minding Britain's 1953 assault on the world's highest mountain early next spring.

Every man's place on the ground is being worked out in advance, every piece of equipment tested and retested, every move charted to big-scale maps. Seven times since 1922, the world's toughest climbers have pitted themselves against the silent snows and howling winds of Everest. Seven times the grim mountain has hurled men back, killing several ranking climbers and Himalayan porters.

Col. John Hunt has been chosen leader of the new British party. Another soldier, Maj. C. G. Wylie, is chief staff officer. Hunt and Wylie now are busy on the preparatory planning in a special Everest office set up in the headquarters of the Royal Geographical Society.

Most of the remaining 14 men who complete the party are sedentary workers who just happen to like climbing mountains.

THE CAINE MUTINY

Fifty-third installment from the book, THE CAINE MUTINY, copyright, 1953, by Herman Wouk. Distributed by Doubleday Bookclubs.

"Whole damn place is on fire," Willie bellowed above the noise.

"Do you know how to open the safety valves?" Willie screamed above the noise.

"Yes, sir—"

"Okay, blow 'em off—"

"Aye aye, sir—"

Willie fought through the thronged passageway, stumbling over hoses. Coming to the bridge ladder, he was startled to see Keefe pop out of his cabin, carrying a lumpy grey canvas sack.

"What do you say, Willie? Have we got a chance? Keefe said as Willie stepped aside to let him up the ladder first.

"I think so, sir. What's the sack?"

"Novel, just in case—" Keefe dropped the sack by the flagpole and squinted aft, coughing and clapping a handkerchief to his nose.

"Captain, it doesn't look too bad yet—just one fireroom—" Willie began to describe the damage, but the captain was staring aft, his hands on his hips. Smoke streamed past his face. His eyeballs had an opaque yellowish look and were rimmed with red. Clouds of screaming steam burst above the deckhouse. Keefe glared at Willie. "What went up then?"

"I told them to lift the safeties on number three, sir—" On the galley deckhouse there was a sudden rattling explosion. Three-inch shells began exploding in the ready box with terrifying cracks and sheets of white fire. Keefe screamed, staggered and fell to the deck. Reeking waves of gunpowder smoke swathed the bridge. Willie crouched beside the captain, and saw several blue-dungareed legs climb up on the rail and leap overboard. Keefe said, "My arm, my arm," holding his shoulder and kicking at the deck. Blood welled between his fingers and dripped.

"Captain, are you all right? The men are beginning to jump," Keefe sat up, his face twisted and sick. "Let's pass the word to abandon ship—God, my arm feels like it's coming off—" "Sir, I swear I don't think we have to abandon yet—" Keefe got up on one knee and staggered erect. He stumbled into the wheelhouse and grabbed at the public-address lever with a bloody hand. "This is the captain speaking. All hands abandon ship—"

Willie, at the doorway, heard only the captain's weak voice in the wheelhouse, and no answering boom in the loudspeakers.

"Sir," he shouted, "your p.a. is dead—"

Keefe came lurching out of the wheelhouse. A fresh explosion in the smoke on the deckhouse sent a rattle of metal against the bridge and a blast of heat. "This ship won't live another five minutes!" Keefe ran to the rail and peered aft. "Look, they're all jumping back there. The whole goddam main deck must be going up." He dived through a bunch of sailors and clutched the canvas sack. "Let's go! All hands over the side—"

The sailors and officers began jamming, and jostled, each other like subway riders in their eagerness to climb the rail. They bumped and pressed Willie, who was leaning out, trying to see through the stinging fumes.

"Captain, nobody's jumping back aft—those guys in the water are all from the bridge!" One after another crewmen and officers were leaping off the wing into the water. Keefe had one leg over the bulwark. He clasped the canvas sack in his uninjured arm. He was climbing with methodical care, favoring his bloodstained arm. "Captain," Willie shouted at him, "they're not jumping back aft—they're not—"

Keefe paid no attention whatever. Willie seized him by the shoulder as he leaned out to jump. "Captain, I request permission to stay aboard with volunteers to try to get the fire under control!"

A flicker of understanding appeared in the novelist's glazed eyes. "Hell, Willie, if you want to commit suicide, I can't stop you!" Keefe leaped out far, his skinny legs flailing the air.

From the time the Kamikaze hit until suction was regained, 17 minutes elapsed. During the rescue manoeuvres in the next hour Willie retained the strangely clear visions and buoyant spirits which he had acquired when Keefe jumped overboard. He made dozens of quick decisions as damage reports poured into the wheelhouse and little emergencies sprang up in the wake of the conquered big one. He nosed the ship slowly among the swimmers, taking care to stop his screws whenever he came near them.

He turned over the conn to Farrington and went to the sea ladder when the captain was hauled aboard. "How the hell did you do it, Willie?" Keefe gasped. "It was a miracle. I'll recommend you for the Navy Cross—"

"Will you take the conn now, Captain? Do you feel all right?" "Hell, you're doing fine. Keep going. Pick 'em all up. I'll change my clothes—get pharmacist's mate to fix up this damn arm, it's killing me—Did you take a muster?"

"Taking it now, sir—" "Fine—keep going. I'll be up on the 'bridge' in half an hour, Willie—take a muster—"

The list of missing men shrank as the ship picked up one swimmer after another. Finally there was only one name without a line through it on Willie's penciled sheet: Everett. Harold Black, water tender third class—Horrible. A search party went wading through the gutted, flooded fireroom in hip boots. They found the missing sailor. Horrible's motion had been his death sentence. Two days ago he had been transferred from the engine room which was now entirely undamaged, to the watch in the fireroom where he had died.

Keefe slouched in the captain's chair on the bridge, pale and languid, and allowed Willie to bring the ship into the harbor. He took over the conn to anchor, giving orders in a flat, tired voice. Willie went below, discarded his wet, filthy clothes in a heap on the deck of his room, and took a steamy shower. He dressed in his freshest khakis, drew his curtain and stretched out on the bunk, yawning. And then he began to tremble. It was just his hands at first, but it spread quickly to his whole body. He buzzed with a shaking finger for a mess boy.

The trembling fit was dying down when Rasselas brought the food: two thick cold lamb sandwiches, and coffee hidden by its own vapors. Willie wolfed the sandwiches.

The phone buzzer rang. It was Keefe, speaking in a quiet, decidedly cordial tone: "Willie, if you're all squared away, would you mind coming up here for a moment?"

"Aye aye, captain. Right now." The novelist was on his bunk in a red bathrobe, resting against a pile of pillows. The sling hung empty around his neck, and the bandaged arm lay along the side of the bunk. He was drinking something dark brown in a water glass. He waved the glass at Willie, stopping the contents over the rim. "Medicinal brandy. Specific for loss of blood, prescribed by the pharmacist's mate. Also I dare say for nerves tried by a day of heroism. Have some."

"I will, thanks, Captain." The brandy ran down Willie's throat like warm water, without the slightest sting. He rocked back in the swivel chair, enjoying the glow. Keefe said suddenly. "Why did you stay on board, Willie?"

"Well, Captain, don't forget, I'd seen the actual damage amidships and you hadn't. And you were wounded and shocked, and I wasn't—if things had been the other way around—"

"I would still have jumped," Keefe threw his head back on the pillows and stared upward. "I want to tell you something, Willie. I feel more sympathy for Keefe than you ever will, unless you get a command. You can't understand command till you've had it. It's the loneliest, most oppressive job in the whole world. It's a nightmare, unless you're an 'ox. You're forever teetering along a tiny path of correct decisions and good luck that meanders through an infinite gloom of possible mistakes. At any moment you can commit a hundred manslaughters. I think I've managed to do pretty well—until today—haven't I?"

The tone of appeal made Willie hot with embarrassment. "Of course, Captain—" "Well, it's been a struggle. Exec is nothing. It's command, command—I don't know, I might still have bled through if not for that damn out-of-snowhere son of a bitch of a Kamikaze."

Keefe's voice cracked, and tears spouted out of his eyes. Willie jumped up, averting his face. "Captain, I'll come back a little later, you're not well at all—" "Oh, stick around, Willie. I'm okay."

Willie reluctantly leaned against the desk, still not looking at the captain. In a moment Keefe said dryly, "It's okay, I'm all right now. Have another brandy."

The tears were gone from his face. He held the bottle out to Willie.

"Remember when you left that action dispatch in your discarded pants for three days?" Willie grinned. "I never told you, but De Vries and I had quite a talk about you that night. Curiously enough, it was I who said you were a hopeless case. De Vries said you would be an outstanding officer eventually. I'll never know how he could tell. You've got yourself a medal, Willie, if my recommendation means anything—well. Thanks for letting

Thousand-Thrill Series

BY CARL LUNDQUIST
NEW YORK (UP)—Baseball will remember 1952 as the year of the "thousand thrill" world series.

There was much else that happened along the way but nothing to compare with those seven games in which the royal purple Yankees once more emerged as world champions. It was the fourth straight world title for the Bombers, trying an all-time record for the team and for doughty Casey Stengel, their nimble-witted manager.

Of the Dodgers in defeat, it was bitter that they came so close and still missed out after dominating the series all the way until they came home to Flatbush for the two final games and what looked like certain victory. It was their sixth try in the series and their fourth against Yankee teams, but once again it had to be "wait until next year."

Brooklyn took the opener, 4-2, as rookie Joe Black pitched a six-hitter and Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider and Peeewe Reese hit homers.

The Yankees took the second game, 7-1, on Vic Raschi's three-hitter and Billy Martin's homer that featured a five-run "sew up" rally. Madness struck in full force in the third game when Preacher Roe pitched Brooklyn to a 5-3 triumph in which two runs were scored in the ninth as a pitch by Tom Gorman smashed Yogi Berra's finger. The runners streaked across on the passed ball as the bewildered Berra tried to figure out where the ball went.

In the fourth game Reynolds came back with the series pitching classic, a four-hit shutout over Black as Johnny Mize hit the homer he needed for the victory, his second in as many games. The fifth game was the real classic. It went 11 innings and was decided in a rally in which a double by the irrepressible Snider was the key blow. Prior to that the Yankees had exploded for a six-run rally off Carl Erskine in the fifth as Mize hit his third homer in as many games and his 2,000th major league base hit. The Dodgers batted back to tie the score on a homer by Snider, then won it in the extra inning. But not until Carl Furillo with a leaping incredible catch robbed Mize of still another homer in the bottom of the 11th.

In the sixth game the Yankees won, 3-2, despite two homers by Duke Snider. Reynolds saved Raschi in a great relief role as Berra and Mantle hit Yankee homers and another run was set up on a freak single by Raschi who slashed a drive off pitcher Billy Loes' leg that otherwise would have been fielded easily by Jackie Robinson at second base.

The grand finale came in a 4-2 Yankee triumph in which first Reynolds, and then Bob Kuza, relieved brilliantly and Mantle, the great new star of the Yankees hit another homer as did Gene Woodling.

Kins, Clark Start Too Late

If they ever start playing five-quarter basketball, the Victoria Kins are going to terrorize a lot of highly-rated teams.

Saturday night, just as the Kins were slicing relentlessly into an early lead built up by the visiting Seattle Alpine Dairy crew, the clock ran out and Kins found themselves on the short end of a 54-45 score.

A bad first quarter, in which they scored only seven points while Alpines hit for 20, put Kins on the ropes, and they had to fight from behind a huge deficit until the latter stages of the game.

Alpines, who will be back in town at the end of January to defend the Kinsmen Trophy, had one of the tallest clubs ever to appear in Victoria.

With six-foot, eight-inch centre Rod Gibbs leading the height parade, Alpines controlled both backboards and a good portion of their points

Idle Cougars Remain in Tie With Royals for Sixth

Seattle 3, New Westminster 2
New Westminster 2, Calgary 0
Saskatoon 9, Edmonton 4
Vancouver 1, Tacoma 1

Calgary Stampeders have climaxed their bad-to-worse Pacific Coast tour with a Western Hockey League game in which they didn't even score a goal, let alone win.

Netminder Lucien Dechene got his third shutout of the season at Stamps' expense Saturday night as New Westminster Royals white-washed the Calgary 2-0 on goals by Jack Hamilton and Ken Ulliot.

Royals, however, weren't so fortunate the next time out. They were edged 3-2 by Seattle Bombers in Sunday night's lone WHL encounter.

A decisive win put Saskatoon Quakers back by themselves in first spot and Vancouver Canucks, held to a draw, fell back into the runner-up position half a game below Quakers.

QUAKERS SNAP SLUMP
Quakers emerged from their slump with a rush to whip Edmonton Flyers 9-4 while defenseman Bill Davidson flicked in a shot with less than a minute remaining to give Tacoma Rockets a 1-1 tie with Canucks.

Stamps, who lost four and got one draw on the coast trip, in contrast to their unbeaten invasion of the west earlier in the season, are four points behind Canucks and only a point ahead of Bombers.

Tacoma is in fifth place, Victoria and New Westminster are tied for sixth and Edmonton holds down the cellar.

Joe Bell, Lorne Nadeau and George Pargeter scored for Seattle Sunday night as Bombers overcame a first-period New Westminster lead and Max McNab and Bob Bergeron connected for Royals.

Vancouver's goal against Tacoma came in the first, Larry Popen knocking a rebound past goalie Doug Stevenson. The game was a battle of goalies with Vancouver's Emil Francis and Stevenson both playing brilliantly.

ROUSE GETS TWO
Cy Rouse paced Quakers with three goals and an assist, Captain Chuck McCullough, Jack Evans, Doug Bentley, Alex Kuz, Herb Jeffrey and Alex Kaleta completed the scoring for the winners.

Vic Stasiuk led Edmonton with two goals, and Jack MacDonald and Hugh Coffin got the others.

This was Saskatoon's fourth win in 12 meetings with Flyers. Edmonton has won seven and one game also a tie.

Goes to Aces
MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens announced Saturday that Guy Stewart, acquired by waiver 10 days ago from New York Rangers, have been sent to Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior Hockey League on loan.

The loan is for the remainder of the season but Stewart will be subject to immediate recall.

Royals Enter Mainland Cup Soccer Final
VANCOUVER (CP)—New Westminster Royals came from behind Saturday afternoon to beat North Shore United, 5-4, after overtime in the semi-final of the Mainland Cup competition at Callister Park.

They qualified to meet the winner of the other semi-final between Firefighters and Vancouver City on New Year's Day. Firefighters and Vancouver City meet next Friday in the other semi-final.

Gogie Stewart scored the winning goal in overtime after Johnny McKay had forced extra time by converting a penalty shot with only 15 seconds left in regulation time.

Ivan Carr and Tommy Druce scored the other Royals goals. Fred Whitaker got three goals for North Shore, George Beckett the other.

SASKATCHEWAN JUNIOR

'Le Gros Bill' Leaves Gold, Goals in His Wake

TITLE TRIUMPH WORTH ONLY $800 TO MOORE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore says he received only $800 for his title-winning fight, "but it made me feel like a millionaire."

Moore, who won the title last week from Joey Maxim, said he also received about $2,000 for training expenses. Maxim received a reported $100,000 under the contract terms. If they meet again in the return bout promised to Maxim the two are expected to share the purse equally.

COURT ACTION SOUGHT

Christenberry Under Attack

NEW YORK (CP)—Carmino Graziano, co-manager of middleweight Joe Giardello, plans to ask a court to decide whether Robert K. Christenberry of the New York Athletic Commission had a legal right to reverse the decision in a fight Friday.

Graziano and his fellow co-manager said that if they didn't put the Christenberry ruling to a court test, "Christenberry's procedure might be put into effect by any commissioner in any state who disagreed with any decision."

Christenberry is faced by at least one demand that he resign, considerable sharp criticism from New York sports writers and the wrath of bettors and those who accepted bets and were threatened with having to pay off both ways.

It all stemmed from the commission's unprecedented action Friday night in changing the card of judge Joe Agnello and thus giving Billy Graham of New York the decision over Giardello in the televised 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

CONTROVERSIAL REVIEW

It was first announced that Giardello was the winner. That brought a storm of protest from the small crowd of 3,228. Then after a brief huddle, ring announcer Johnny Addie was told to tell the crowd the result was "unofficial, subject to a review."

The review, which took place in a dressing room with Christenberry, commissioner C. B. Powell and the commission secretary, Dan Dowd, sitting in, produced an "official" decision half an hour later naming Graham the winner.

Houbregs Paces Washington Win

SEATTLE (AP)—Deadlocked at $1.81 at the close of the scheduled playing time, Washington's Huskies ran a scoring fever in the overtime period Saturday night and squeaked a sharp-shooting California basketball quintet, 99-88.

Paced by Bob Houbregs, who tallied 36 points for his personal all-time high, Washington led at halftime, 42-41, but the count was tied at the end of every other period.

ODELL OUT AS HUSKY COACH

U. of W. President Favors Dismissal

SEATTLE (AP)—President Henry Schmitz of the University of Washington, backed athletic director Harvey Cassill completely Saturday in a controversy that points to the dismissal of Howie Odell as head football coach.

Odell said, Tuesday, Cassill had told him he would not be retained. The coach's three-year contract at a reported $15,000 annually has one year to run.

Schmitz' statement was the first formal word that Cassill had recommended the discharge of the coach who tutored two all-Americans, Don Heinrich and Hugh McElhenney, during his five years at Washington.

Odell's record this year was seven victories and three defeats and his team finished third in the Pacific Coast Conference race. He now is in San Francisco, head coach of the West team which will play in the annual Shrine game, December 27.

The president said it was "regrettable that the public discussion of this situation has centered around so-called personal differences between Coach Odell and the director of athletics, when, in fact, the roots of the issue go far deeper."

LACK OF CO-OPERATION

He said Odell had "demonstrated a lack of co-operation essential to the welfare of any unified athletic program."

Schmitz added it "is our conclusion that Mr. Cassill's recommendation should be approved."

Now the issue goes before the university board of regents. Dr. Donald G. Corbett of Spokane, president of the board, has said the regents would meet during the third week in January. Cassill was known to be pressing for an earlier decision, possibly to speed the installation of a new coaching regime.

Beliveau Again Sparks Habs

Montreal 4, 3; Boston 3, 6
Chicago 4, 1; Toronto, 2, 4
Detroit 5, 1; New York 2, 1

A star flashed briefly across the National Hockey League horizon last week, scattering a shower of gold in its wake and promising more to come.

NHL officials couldn't help looking regretful as Jean-Marie Beliveau headed back to Quebec after completing his three-game tryout with Montreal Canadiens. The big guy looked like money in the bank.

Nobody begrudged the Canadiens the five goals Beliveau parked behind rival netminders while he was on loan from Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior Hockey League. To a man, the league's other five club owners were willing to chance more of the same. If it brought the prospect of throngs of fans interested in seeing Beliveau perform. He drew 42,339 in his three-game stint.

But they'll have to wait till next year at least. Beliveau has commitments to his home town, where Quebecers regard him as a sort of all-year Santa Claus, who presents them with a sackful of goals every winter.

The comfort to the Canadiens and their rivals was that the Montreal club had lured Beliveau onto an NHL rink, at least temporarily, after years of unsuccessful wooing. It looked like a good bet that the guy they call "le gros Bill" would be back for more next year.

Beliveau bowed out in Boston Sunday, potting two goals against the Bruins and looking as much like a big leaguer as when he scored three against New York Rangers in his Montreal debut last week. The biggest Boston crowd of the season, 12,984 fans, watched him lead the Canadiens to their 4-3 victory over the Bruins and boost the Habits into second place.

WINGS GAIN

In other week-end games, Detroit Red Wings showed they intend to dominate the league until playoff time by trimming New York 5-2 Sunday night after tying 1-1 with the cellar-dwellers Saturday night. Toronto and Chicago split, the Maple Leafs winning 4-1 in Toronto Saturday night and the Black Hawks turning the tables 4-2 at home Sunday night.

Boston walloped Montreal 6-3 Saturday night, but that wasn't the fault of Beliveau. He was capably looked after throughout the game by the Bruins. A crowd of 14,714 saw him Saturday night, more than the 14,641 who watched him tally three goals Thursday night.

Veteran Ted Lindsay Sunday scored his 20th goal in NHL competition as the Wings outplayed the New Yorkers. Metro Prystay netted his 100th and Marcel Pronovost scored two and got two assists.

Mack 90 Tuesday

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Connie Mack, who's won just about every accolade that baseball can offer as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, has only one desire left in life—to hit the 93-year mark.

Mack will celebrate his 90th birthday Tuesday.

McKECHNIE CUP CONTEST HERE BOXING DAY

Tide Altered for Cup Match

By GEOFFREY CONWAY
Victoria's Crimson Tide completed a successful warm-up Saturday for their vital Boxing Day Cup match by whipping a strengthened Navy fifteen, 18-12.

For Tide's chances of returning the cup to Victoria after its seven-year exodus will hinge on the result of Friday's game with the undefeated Vancouver Reks at Macdonald Park.

Vancouver has met both the

Vancouver Reks Lead McKechnie Cup Chase

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Reks, who meet Victoria's on Boxing Day on Friday, took over top place in the McKechnie Cup English rugby standings by defeating Northwest 17-5 at Brockton Oval Saturday, scoring a goal on a treacherous pitch.

The score in no way indicates the run of the game. Bad luck trailed Northwest. First of all, Pete Moffatt, dynamic half-back, failed to reach the ground in time owing to a misunderstanding, and Reg Whitford, one of the spares, had to take his place.

PLAY SHORTHANDED

After 30 minutes' play, with Reks leading 3-0, Hector Rossetti, Northwest's five-eighths, had the muscles of his back torn in a tackle, and left the game, and his team fought the rest of the game with 14 men. They made such a great fight that they actually took a 5-3 lead, but force of

Leafs, Alberni In Cage Wins

VANCOUVER (CP)—Centre Geoff Craig and guard Jack McKillop led their Clover Leaf teammates to an 82-45 Senior "A" Men's Basketball League victory over Arctic Club Saturday night. Both men scored 17 points.

New Westminster Moderns whipped U.B.C. Jayvees, 61-45, in another league game. George Cathedral was high man for losers with 21 points, while Stu Magill scored 11 for the Moderns.

In an exhibition game, Alberni High School defeated Point Grey All-Stars, 25-21.

O'Brien's Star

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Eddie O'Brien sank a basket with only two seconds of the game remaining to give Seattle University an 81-79 victory over Oregon here Saturday night before a crowd of 8,200.

Joined to Dead Brother, Siamese Twin Dies

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A wide-eyed, terrified Siamese twin, joined head-to-head with his dead brother, died here before brain surgeons could try to save his life.

Four-month-old John Edward Flowers died in an operating room Saturday while a team of surgeons clustered around preparing for the enormously-complex separation operation. That was nine hours after his brain-to-brain twin, John L., died in a Greenwood, Miss., hospital. Cause of death was unknown.

When John L. suddenly died, Greenwood physicians knew only drastic surgery, similar to that undergone recently by Chicago's Brodie twins, could save John Edward. The twins, one with eyes closed in death, the other crying lustily, were placed in the back seat of a highway patrol car.

Two nurses accompanied them on the 145-mile race to Memphis. It was the first time the twins had left the Greenwood hospital where they were born to Mrs. Roosevelt Flowers, a Negro, last August. The parents did not accompany the twins to Memphis.

No separation attempt had been planned for the twins before John L.'s death. Dr. Fred Sandifer of Greenwood said they were considered too young.

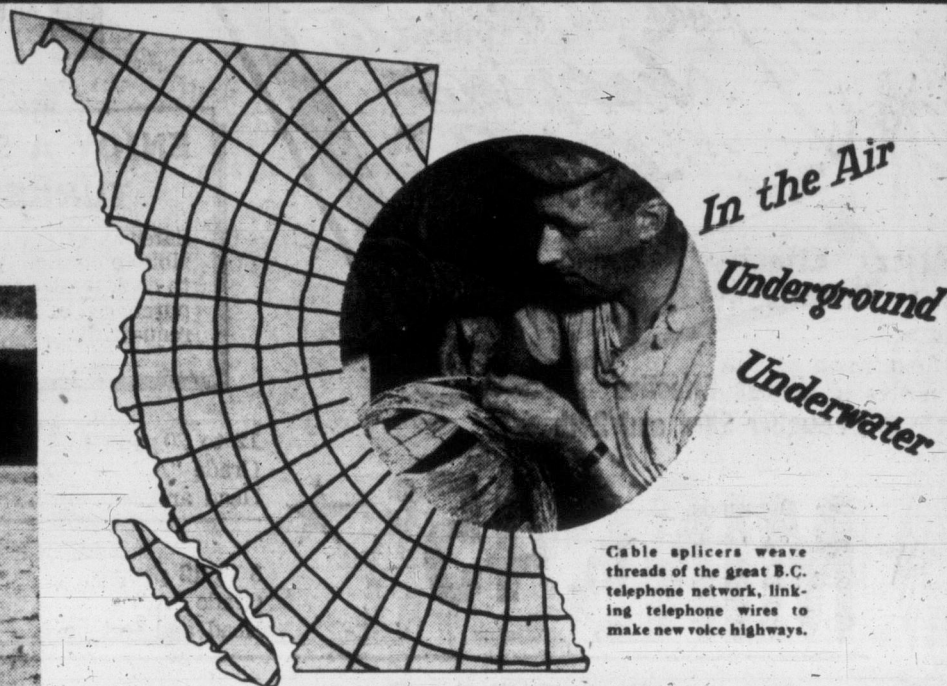

Submarine cable, which is even more complicated than aerial and underground cable, is dropped below the waters of lakes, rivers and sea, to carry conversations between people who know little of the route their voices take on their split-second journey. Submarine cables are protected by wrappings of armoured wire and waterproof jute and tar.

More than 1000 pairs of wires are going underground in the picture above, as a B.C. Telephone Company crew guides the cable down a manhole and through ducts under the streets, where it will lie, quietly giving service to hundreds of new telephones in the rapidly growing network of communication. Each pair of wires is a new voice highway.

Cable splicers weave threads of the great B.C. telephone network, linking telephone wires to make new voice highways.

Hundreds of pairs of paper-insulated wires inside a lead sheath go to make up a telephone cable. Here, huge reels of cable are shown being unloaded from a box-car. Each of these reels contains many miles of wire in cable and is destined for a place in the great network which is necessary for voice communication throughout the Province.

Spinning aerial cable to the quarter-inch steel supporting wire is a job for careful co-ordination between truck, reel and spinner, and when the job is done, the neatness and stability of another voice highway belie the activity within the lead sheath.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

There's no need to attend a college.
To add enough to your store of knowledge;
All things to learn, all hints to heed,
Are waiting for you—if you will read:

"If you plan to clip a pair of colorful earrings to vamp edge of your black suede pumps; place a strip of cellophane tape over the sharp edges of the inside clip to avoid snagging your stockings."
Or, change your plans, and wear your earrings on your ears.

"The only way to stand on a wet floor and handle electric appliances safely is to wear rubbers. So put off the ironing until your floor is absolutely dry."
You mean, you've gone and lost your rubbers again?

"FLOWERS AND JEWELS FOREMOST IN SEASON'S WEAR."
Baby, it's cold outside!

"If you haven't time to iron immediately, you can keep the laundry damp indefinitely without mildew. Store it in the refrigerator wrapped in waxed paper."
I THOUGHT that midnight sandwich last night tasted a little starchy.

"IROQUOIS LEAVES POST ON WAY TO EAST COAST."
Well, don't worry. There'll be a new issue out before you get there.

"You meet a friend whose appearance leads you to suspect he is not well."
"WRONG: Say, 'You aren't looking well. Have you been ill?'"

"RIGHT: Show your concern in a way that will not depress him. Say something like: 'Tell me all about yourself.' And if he does, you can sing 'I'll be home for Christmas—but only in my dreams.'"

Punch disclaims all responsibility. He says he can get along with or without cats, but does not condone the policy of any city which permits a professional cat-cracker to operate at large.

(There is no use explaining to Punch that the news item beneath the above headline dealt with a catalyst process in refining oil. To him, a cat is a cat, and he objects to seeing one cracked. Although, he will admit that most cats are at least half-cracked the day they are born.)

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Re-elected president of the Oak Bay Art Club recently was B. T. Hill. The annual meeting was held in the Oak Bay Municipal Hall. Other officers: Miss Dale Sutherland, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. S. J. T. Clark, Mrs. F. Brown, V. Lomas, executive, and M. R. Levitt, convener of the program committee.

One hundred and eighty-two members attended the annual Christmas party of the Old Age Pensioners' Branch 5 in Terry's restaurant Friday. Entertainment included songs, musical selections, impersonations and readings.

Everett H. MacPherson, young naval rating, was remanded without plea to Tuesday evening to appear in city police court today charged with taking a car without the consent of the owner, Bob Clarke, 1251 Tolcoross.

Away from the city for over 18 months, RCMP Const. William M. Kerr arrived in this city on Sunday evening to spend Christmas with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Kerr, 3419 Cook. Formerly employed by the Victoria city police, he is now a member of Toronto Criminal Investigation Bureau.

Expert Says B.C. Living Cost to Rise

A continued rise in the cost of living index in British Columbia next year is predicted by M. M. Gilchrist, provincial marketing commissioner. Mr. Gilchrist, who is recognized as an expert at figures for the department of agriculture, feels that its no use "fooling ourselves about what is to come."

"The cost of living will continue to rise next year and will probably continue to do so for the next few years, he said today in an interview.

Freight increases and agricultural production in other parts of Canada and the United States, plus an increasing population, will all tend to bring prices up, he said.

STEAKS RARER?
"A sirloin steak which costs about 94 cents a pound today, will probably go up next year after the U.S. lifts its embargo on Canadian meat," he pointed out.

"He said next year it will cost the householder a little more to run his house."

Mr. Gilchrist said an analysis of this year's food price index showed that the price on the majority of necessary foods and goods went up. Prices on less useful things went down.

"The breakdown of these prices explains the popular myth that food prices generally are lower than they were a year ago," he said.

Mr. Gilchrist's advice to house-holders who want to get an accurate cost-of-living picture next year is not to rely on the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, "but on the butcher's bill."

Fred A. Copstick, 1580 Haultain, and Alan V. Griffin, 620 Michigan, drivers of cars in a violent collision at Douglas and Belleville December 11, each were fined $35 in city police court today.

They pleaded guilty to careless driving. A total of $1,100 damage was done to the cars. Acting-Prosecutor Lloyd G. McKenzie told the court. James J. Proudfoot appeared for Copstick.

The Greater Victoria Dog Obedience Training Club ended its activities for the year with trials and a Christmas tea.

S. W. Bridges' Great Dane, Rex, copped the novice class with 170 of a possible 200 marks, qualifying for a club ribbon.

In the companion dog competition George Christie's German shepherd, Carla, won with a faultless performance. Dr. C. McKenzie's pomeranian, Seaford, won the open class, and Mrs. D. B. Hudson's dog Toffels took the utility class.

A car owned by Meldram Smith, 615 Esquimalt Road, parked on the road opposite his home, was struck in the left rear by an old-model car that did not stop at 11 p.m. Sunday, city police reported.

City police reported that occupants of Room 309 Station Hotel, Street Street, put out a mattress fire in their room early Sunday morning. The room is occupied by Don Herman, his wife and three children, police said.

Lee Chan, 67-year-old Chinese charged with being an inmate in a common bawdy house, was further remanded to next Monday for trial in city police court today.

A fine of $25 was imposed against James Reid Kesson in city police court today when he pleaded guilty to using grossly insulting language in front of a woman on the night of Dec. 12.

Sikh Society Torn by Strife Over Observance of Aged Traditions

BY HUMPHRY DAVY
Dissension over the "wearing of beards" and other old traditions is splitting the Sikh population of British Columbia.

It has already resulted in the incorporation under the Societies Act of a new Sikh organization known as the "Sikh Principles and Defense Society of B.C."

The new society claims its objectives is to maintain the ideals of the Sikh religion and traditions of the Sikh people in Canada.

The subject of controversy arose when officials of the Khalsa Society ruled that clean shaven members of the community can serve on the executive committee of the organization. In the past only long-haired and bearded Sikhs could serve as officials.

The Khalsa Society is the most important Sikh organization, and has a membership in B.C. of about 1,500.

The society was founded by Garu Gobind Singh, prophet, soldier, poet and scholar, in the seventeenth century, mainly to resist Mongol oppression in India.

The great leader instructed every Sikh, after baptism, to use Singh (lion) as his second name. The members of the Khalsa were also to be ever ready to go through any ordeal for the faith, to make sacrifice for the emancipation of their fellowmen, and to join a crusade against the Mongols.

To be distinctive, Sikhs were to have five symbols each beginning with "K"—Kesh, Kanga, Kachh, Kara and Kirpan, which mean long hair, comb, short trousers, iron bangle and sword.

However, the Guru ruled that these were merely symbols and were not binding for all times. He said they could be changed or eliminated by the general consent of the Khalsa.

Members of the B.C. Khalsa now feel there is no necessity for officials to wear beards or long hair if they do not desire to do so. They also point out there is nothing in the society's constitution obliging a person to wear a beard.

"Our religion preaches non-attachment to early things," explained one Sikh. "There is no reason why we should attach ourselves to traditions which have now served their purpose and usefulness."

However, the new society is expected to attract many, Sikhs who are still strongly attached to old traditions. Their numbers, however, are not expected to reach those of the Khalsa society which represents the majority of East Indians in Canada.

VICTORIA SOLDIER TELLS OF NAZI YOUTH FANATICISM

A Victoria soldier home after duty in Germany with the 27th Infantry Brigade told the British United Press in Vancouver today that resurgent Nazism and Communism are vying for the youth of the war-ravaged country.

Sgt. H. M. Persson said Hannover, near where the Canadians are stationed, was a "hotbed" of youth activities closely linked with Nazism. He also said most trouble between NATO soldiers and civilians was usually started by young fanatics.

Ultimatum Delivered Striking Fishermen

Operators Give Union Week to Decide Whether or Not to Fish This Season

B.C. herring fishermen, who have been idle since October, have just one week to give an answer to operators' final take-it-or-leave-it price offer.

The company men put forward their last proposal today in the form of an ultimatum to the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, which bargains for the fishermen.

The operators, represented by the Fisheries Association of B.C., say the men must agree to fish for $5.50 a ton by December 30 or else the companies which comprise the association will conduct no herring operation this season.

At the same time, the association flatly refuses to enter into any arrangement for having the long-standing price dispute settled by a government arbitration board.

Such a board was requested by the union last week. Fisheries Minister Ralph Chetwynd was to have made an announcement this afternoon as to whether the government would be willing to act in the role of arbitrator.

The companies today declared: "Arbitration cannot possibly provide a practical solution to this business problem."

The new price proposal put forward by the operators is 25 cents a ton lower than a price the association earlier proposed. The association had offered $5.75, but the price was withdrawn after the union answered it with a statement that the fishermen could not consider any offer under $6 a ton.

B.C.'s herring industry is worth between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 a year.

The fishing season normally starts in October and the fish are of better quality when caught early in the season. The small fish lose oil as the season progresses. Those caught at the end of the season are regarded as poor.

The companies, on this ground, claim that unless fishing starts by Jan. 4, it will not be worth their while to process any fish this season.

Santa Claus Never Forgets

It was a bright day for the little patients at Jubilee Hospital Sunday, St. Nick, with a sackful of help from CKDA's Ed Fairley, heaped the children's ward with good cheer. The Jubilee was only one on the list, which included St. Joseph's, the Solarium and the Protestant Orphanage for the past three years, where "Uncle Ed" carried gifts supplied by donations from radio listeners. The Nanaimo Indian Hospital got gifts, too, for the first time. About $5,000 was subscribed to provide presents for small patients like Sharon Bowman, resting in bed, and Arthur Zarft, Sandra McClintock, Ken Pringle and Larry Vowles (left to right), pictured here. ## Second Vote Slated for Shipwrights

A second vote will be taken among shipwrights at Yarrow's Ltd. to determine which of two unions the men wish to represent in collective bargaining, the Labor Relations Board announced today.

It hopes to have the vote taken on Tuesday.

A vote was taken in October which favored Local 9 of the Shipwrights' Union (CCL), 31 to 9, over the Carpenters' Brotherhood, Local 1598 (TLC).

Carpenters objected to the vote, claiming they had held certification for shipwrights, joiners, joiners, carpenters and wooden boat builders at the yard since 1946. Carpenters still believe a vote should be taken in that group, one union officer said.

"We will advise our men not to vote," he said. "We would gain nothing by voting."

A Labor Relations Board spokesman said shipwrights, improvers and helpers voted in the October balloting.

"Only shipwrights will take part in the next vote," he said. "They are the only people concerned, and this will show what they want."

Noted City Churchman, Canon Chadwick, Dies

Rev. Canon Frederick Austin Pakenham Chadwick, noted Canadian churchman who for 27 years served as rector of St. John's Anglican Church, Victoria, died Sunday at his home, 2267 Pacific Avenue. He was 79.

He had been in ill-health for many years.

Born near Guelph, Ont., he was the son of Edward Michael Chadwick, second Baron of Longford, who served at one time as mayor of Guelph. His mother was a daughter of Sir Henry King.

He received his early education at Guelph Public School and the Trinity College School, Port Hope. He graduated from Trinity College, Toronto, with honors in classics, before entering the divinity class at that institution.

A prominent athlete, he was captain of the school's cricket, football and baseball teams, and in 1895 played on the Canadian championship rugby team.

His first church assignment was as deacon of St. George's Church, Guelph, in 1896. The following year he was made priest at Christ Church Cathedral, Hamilton, and then, after his ordination, served in the mission field of Grace Church, Arthur, Ont.

In 1902 he went to St. Paul's Church, Dunville, and during his two years' pastorate there a parish hall and rectory were built.

At All Saints' Church, Windsor, where he went in 1902, he was responsible for having the church enlarged and a pipe organ installed.

His next posting was to St. Paul's, Vancouver, where he saw a rectory and parish hall constructed.

He commenced his ministry at St. John's Church, Victoria, in 1913, and served at that church until his retirement in 1940.

He was appointed rural dean of Victoria in 1927 and installed as one of the first canons of Christ Church Cathedral in 1929.

He was at one time a prominent member of the Victoria Rotary Club and was active also in Masonic circles. His recreations were golf and fishing.

Canon Chadwick married twice. In 1898 he wed Berta Louise Dice, of Milton, Ont. In 1915, he married Creina Russell Henderson, of Windsor.

Besides his wife, he is survived by four children: John P. D. Chadwick, Victoria; Frederick Stewart Chadwick, Arcadia, Calif.; Mrs. Elizabeth Kirk-Owen, London, Eng.; and Lieut.-Cmdr. Ernest Maurice Chadwick, RCN, Ottawa, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. at Christ Church Cathedral. Hayward's B.C. Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Burglars Carry Off Warehouse Stock; Loot Cash, Equipment of City Theatre

Safe-crackers were foiled by a man with a broom when they were surprised in the 4X Bakery, 2629 Prior, early Sunday morning.

The safe contained the week-end cash receipts of the bakery, running into a large but undisclosed sum.

Howard Pepper, 2533 Prior, is the man who wielded the broom to rout two intruders.

The bakery break-in was one of three major raids over the week-end. The Atlas Theatre, Yates Street, lost $7 in cash, a typewriter, public address system and a radio-phonograph combination, manager Marc Preiswerck reported. His files were wrecked but the safe was untouched.

Thieves entered through a rest room window.

In Esquimalt, police are checking the loss at Club's Ltd. warehouse, Viewfield Road, where thieves gained entry through a skylight. They carried off tobacco stock.

BUNGLED JOB
Detectives smiled when they examined the safe at the 4-X bakery. The cracksmen did an amateurish job, they said.

Mr. Pepper speaks modestly of his daring. He entered the bakery just before midnight, Saturday, and smelled gasoline. And he heard what he thought was a blowtorch in operation in the office.

Apparently the intruders heard him, too, for as Mr. Pepper neared the office the men fled for the front door. Mr. Pepper seized a broom and rushed after them. But he was outdistanced.

Blankets had been draped over the office windows, and Mr. Pepper found three tanks of acetylene gas beside the safe, a cutting nozzle, hose, steel bar, flashlight and goggles.

Mr. Pepper is able to describe roughly one of the two burglars he saw. He was about five feet eight inches in height, 165 pounds, wearing a red-brown jacket.

Mode of entry is not known but there were several insecure windows, police discovered.

Mr. Pepper is a night-shift worker at the bakery.

CHRISTMAS TREE BLAZE SPOILS HOLIDAY PLANS

A Christmas tree fire just about ruined the holiday season for Mr. and Mrs. C. Henderson, 4017 Cedar Hill Road, Sunday night.

A light bulb in contact with absorbent cotton probably started the fire at the base of the tree, Saanich firemen say.

Tree, ornaments and gifts were wrecked, a $400 rug was ruined, and Mr. and Mrs. Henderson got their hands burned trying to beat out the blaze.

ties under which the Yukon Territory—207,076 square miles in extent—would be transferred to B.C.

But later on, faced with opposition to his plan from the Tories and within his own party, the then premier asked Ottawa for postponement of the proposal until the general financial situation was studied.

Negotiations carried on at length, many obstacles were thrown in the path of the far-reaching plan and the agreement never reached the Legislature for ratification.

TAKE IN YUKON
The northern line dividing federal and provincial jurisdiction now is the 60th parallel. Extension to the 65th parallel would give B.C. most of the Yukon, including Whitehorse and Dawson, as well as a chunk of the Northwest Territory.

Alberta would get the Great Slave Lake area with its important base metal deposits and the Yellowknife mines.

Mr. Pattullo in 1937 envisioned the extension of B.C. as the forerunner of immense development on the Pacific Coast. If his proposal had been successful, B.C.'s boundaries would have extended right to the Arctic Ocean.

Under the terms of the proposed 1937 agreement, the federal government would have paid to B.C. a $125,000 annual subsidy for five years.

The Yukon would have been turned over debt free and administration buildings would have been handed to B.C. without charge.

But the Yukon Territorial Council demanded a plebiscite to determine whether or not the area should join B.C. The projected annexation, the council contended, would be a "violation of democratic rights" unless the citizens' wish was consulted in a vote.

GOOD IDEA
Recalling his proposal today, Mr. Pattullo said he still thinks "it's a good idea" and that both B.C. and the Yukon could benefit.

"When I made the original suggestion, it just wasn't the right time. Timing is important in these sort of proposals—just like it is in golf."

He recalled he once advocated

Q.—Who was the first Governor-General of Canada after Confederation?—M.E.C.

A.—Viscount Monck (1867-1869.)

Q.—Is the quail a useful bird?—A.G.

A.—Yes. In spring and summer it destroys countless insects, and in the autumn it eats great quantities of harmful weed seeds.

Q.—Our old clock, still in use, is marked in the usual manner, 1 to 12, but around the extreme outside of the face it is numbered up to 31. Can you tell me what these numerals stand for?—C.M.

A.—Inside there is a calendar reel, originally connected with a hand which advanced one stage for each day. It was adjusted manually to the varying number of days in the months. The calendar hand apparently was removed.

Luggage Is Practical Yet Glamorous Gift

By PENNY SAVER

This is the season that tries men's souls—and women's as well. Christmas lists are long and sometimes troublesome, and the No. 1 problem is the important person—be it husband or boy friend, wife or sweetheart—who wants something "practical, but glamorous."

Which explains why 50 per cent of the luggage sold passes over the counters around Christmas, even though we do most of our traveling during the summer months.

With the exception of a diamond bracelet, nothing looks so glamorous under the Christmas tree as a gleaming leather suitcase—and there is never a complaint about it being practical.

Here are a few tips from luggage experts on the types of cases preferred by most males and females.

For the business executive whose frequent trips take him off for a week at a time you'll want a men's soft-side leather two-suitcase. Lightweight yet substantial-looking, it will carry two suits in perfect shape as well as all his other needs for the journey.

Its flexible leather sides provide the maximum amount of space. For the flight-minded male—or his Missus—a new type of extra light leather luggage has been developed which is almost frameless and as soft as a bedroom slipper, yet provides the truly sturdy wear and the aura of prestige that only leather can give.

If the man on your list already owns a two-suitcase, you might choose a smaller matching "companion bag" or one-suitcase, an item sure to make a hit with any busy career man.

Every woman has a special love for the small glamorous leather cosmetic case, for it not only holds safely everything she needs to make her lovelier, but can easily include a blouse, nightie and other overnight essentials. And they can now be obtained in a whole galaxy of colors.

Probably the most popular basic type of luggage for women is the overnight case or week-end, which comes in widths of 18, 21 and 24 inches. When made of leather, which gives and gives and incidentally lasts and lasts, it can hold a surprisingly large assortment of garments.

College girls, brides and frequent long-distance travelers need the slightly larger "pullman" case, or even larger wardrobe (26 or 29 inches wide). And for the real roamer who likes plenty of changes, a route there's the large-sized jackknife or end-opening wardrobe. All of these cases provide built-in racks and hangers to keep suits and dresses as wearable as when they're hanging in your own closet.

AS WE LIVE

Over-Anxious Executive Needs Trip, Relaxation

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

A person can't be too conscientious for his own good. Then, instead of doing better work, he does worse work, as is true of the young woman who wrote:

Q: "I hold an executive position in a large department store. I find it impossible to do my work right, to meet people, and to take responsibility. I worry constantly and live a sheltered life. I have honestly tried to break away from these habits but, if I do, I become extremely nervous, suffer palpitation of the heart, and have after effects of extreme fatigue. I have been to several doctors and a psychiatrist. They say it is anxiety and that I am too conscientious. Is there any remedy for this condition?"

A: Your remedy is to get a better perspective on life. You are and have been taking your work far too seriously. As a result, you have developed a distorted attitude toward it and toward yourself.

Why not ask for a three to six-month leave of absence, on the grounds of health? Take your savings and go away for a trip. Buy yourself some new clothes, change your hair style, and leave all your cares behind you.

Try not to think of your job while you are gone. Have a good time, meet people, see some parts of the world you have never seen before, and forget about yourself. You will be surprised at how much more this will do for you than all the pills you have ever taken.

There is no question your company feels that you have ability. Otherwise they would not put you in a position of responsibility. But, if you don't pull yourself together, they will begin to wonder if they have been wrong about you and you may lose your job.

They do not expect perfect work from you any more than they do from other workers.

The only cure for you is a complete change of scenery, far enough away from your job that you can see it in correct perspective.

If you have a personal problem, write Elizabeth Hurlock in care of this newspaper.

Good Dessert for Yuletide

Do you like old-fashioned treats for Christmas? Then listen to this one—an old-fashioned, glistening white cake with gumdrops in it and on top.

Carolyn Coggins suggested it. She is author of several good cookbooks and party consultant for Fanny Farmer Candles, so her ideas are worthy of a lot of attention.

For her old-time Christmas cake, she uses a modern white cake mix, colorful assorted gumdrops (the nice jelly kind) plus a jiffy seven-minute frosting.

GUMDROP CAKE
(Takes about one pound gumdrops for cake in all.)

Chop enough gumdrops to make ½ cup. Empty box of white cake mix into large mixing bowl. Dust two tablespoons cake mix over chopped gumdrops; toss well. Mix white cake as directed on package, folding floured gumdrops into batter last.

Turn into cake pans and bake as a two-layer cake according to directions on the package, spread.

Cool and remove from pan onto wire cake racks. When layers are cool, brush off crumbs.

Place one layer on cake plate, bottom side up. Spread with seven-minute frosting. Top with other layer, right side up, and if necessary fasten with toothpicks. Frost sides, then top of the cake. Use whole old-fashioned candy gumdrops of bright green and red for the top and around the sides. Decorate with a sprig of holly.

SEVEN-MINUTE FROSTING
In top of double boiler, beat together for one minute (or until well blended) two unbeaten egg whites, one and a half cups granulated sugar, one-third cup water, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two teaspoons white corn syrup.

Place over rapidly boiling water. Beat constantly with egg beater for seven minutes or until frosting is stiff enough to stand in peaks. Remove from heat, add one teaspoon vanilla flavoring. Beat until thick enough to directions on the package, spread.

Gay Party at Government House

Moving pictures, supper and a visit from Santa Claus, with presentation of gifts, all were included on the program arranged at Government House, Saturday afternoon for children of Victoria's Protestant Orphanage.

The boys and girls were welcomed by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Clarence Wallace in the ballroom, where tall lighted Christmas trees, glittering with tinsel and baubles, added a festive note.

Three films were shown from the Woody Woodpecker and Three Bears series. Projectionist was Clarence Ferris. Supper was served at tables decorated with bonbons and Christmas greenery arranged in the games room on the lower floor.

Later, the children returned where they danced and sang to the music of well-known carols.

On the arrival Santa Claus, in the person of Col. R. L. Mitchell, was eagerly surrounded by laughing children as he called their names and presented a "wished-for" gift to each boy and girl, which they had asked for in letters written "to Santa" several weeks ago.

Balloons were released from the balcony at conclusion of gift presentations and Santa Claus led a conga line around the ballroom that included His Honor and Mrs. Wallace and other grown-ups at the party.

As the children left for home.

Christmas Party

Seventy-five young boxers removed their gloves recently to attend a gala Christmas party given by the newly-formed women's auxiliary to the Greater Victoria Boxing Association.

The party was held in No. 1 Fire Hall auditorium, Cormorant Street, where the boys and their 25 officials received balloons, paper hats, and were later served refreshments. Movies were shown.

Under direction of president Mrs. C. McGaw, vice-president Mrs. A. Duval and secretary-treasurer Mrs. A. L. Groppe, this first major project of the auxiliary proved a success.

Mrs. Wallace presented each one with a gaily colored bag of candies and fruit.

Mrs. A. Barner, matron, with Miss Joyce McCarter and Mrs. Neta Swift accompanied the children to the party. Members of the Junior Auxiliary to the Protestant Orphanage, invited to the party party were Misses Marjorie Coates, Joyce Appleby, Mrs. Nettle Hart, Mrs. Marjorie Shaw and Mrs. Chris Sherwood. Cmdr. Hew Paterson was aide-camp to the Lieutenant-Governor and Miss Ruth MacLean assisted Mrs. Wallace with the young guests.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Would anyone like to give a baby board and room? Sounds startling, doesn't it, but according to Miss Mildred Wright of the Family and Children's Service, there is a need in Victoria right at this moment for infant boarding houses.

The agency she represents has a program separate from their adoption program, of placing infants from the hospitals in foster homes, chiefly to help unmarried mothers and others needing temporary placements of children until adoption can be arranged.

Delay in adoption placement, Miss Wright says, comes through the mother not having decided to release her baby, in establishing paternity, or in obtaining consent of the legal father, or other similar reasons.

Occasionally a doctor requests the Family and Children's Service to find homes for infants where the mother is too ill to take on the care of a child; sometimes a home must be provided because the child's own parents are unable to provide for it temporarily.

All these babies need home care lasting from a few weeks to a year, depending on circumstances. Age of the infants are from one month to one year.

Miss Wright assures you that a sum to cover cost of maintenance will be paid the temporary foster parents, in addition to clothing and medical care. But the service is a non-profit undertaking and anyone who is willing to give this care to babies must do so because of their love of children and desire to give assistance to an infant at the time in its life when it really needs a home.

Sum provided will cover the cost, but will not pay for all the care and love and affection which should go with the offer to take a child into your home.

On the other hand, if you are willing to give this service, you will find much satisfaction in this worthwhile work.

Remember, this is a TEMPORARY placement service and has mostly to do with ADOPTION.

Are you interested? Then get in touch with Miss Mildred Wright at the Family and Children's Service office in Spencerhouse, right away. She needs your help!

I know, it's a bad time of year for you. But think for a minute... of the babe that was born in a manger on Christmas Day.

Grace Farquharson Wed in Naden Chapel on Saturday Evening

Haney and Victoria share interest in the Saturday evening wedding of Margaret Grace Farquharson to John Alexander McKenzie which took place in the chapel at HMCS Naden. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Farquharson, 108 Crease Avenue, and the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. McKenzie, Haney, B.C.

Chaplain D. G. Peebles officiated. Tall white tapers illuminated the altar, which was arranged with standard baskets of white chrysanthemums. White button chrysanthemums and coral bows marked the guest pews.

The bride was a charming picture in a white lace and taffeta ballgown, styled with tiny stiffened collar and fitted bodice. The skirt was detailed with scalloped lace panel and accordion-pleated net inset. A veil of illusion net filmed to finger-tip length from her lace Juliet cap. The colonial bouquet was Talisman roses, with cascading streamers and knotted rosebuds.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, George R. Farquharson, Jr.

Coral pink nylon net over shot taffeta fashioned the ballgown of Miss Margaret Tait, maid of honor; Mrs. Keith Duncan, matron of honor, and Miss Lynne Bevan, bridesmaid, complemented by net stoles and bandeaux of flowers in harmonizing tones in their hair matched colonial bouquets of white chrysanthemums with coral and white streamers.

Best man was Pet Sivertsen and ushers were David Hamilton and James Campbell. During signing of the register, Miss Jean McCormick sang "Because."

For a reception in Oak Bay Beach Hotel, the fireplace was banked with Christmas decorations and greenery. Derrick Cosby proposed the toast. Serviteurs were Misses Patricia Richardson, Donna Whiting and Tannis Carlson. At the reception Miss McCormick sang "Because."

Make Christmas Day, Meal Easy

If you expect house-guests, plan all the meals for Christmas Day well ahead so that there is lots of free time to enjoy the festivities. The breakfast that the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture suggest for Christmas 1932 is a rosy-red baked apple, scrambled eggs, a hot breakfast roll or perhaps waffles with bacon and sausage, and plenty of good rich coffee.

When it comes to the meal of meats—Christmas Dinner, save confusion by serving the appetizer course, help yourself, a style in the living room. This gives an extra few minutes to put the final touches on the rest of the dinner. For the appetizer—a colorful chilled cranberry juice cocktail and tiny salted crackers spread with creamed cheese are simple but oh, so good. The traditional turkey, green beans (either frozen or canned), fluffily mashed turnip, and creamy mashed potatoes are an ideal main course. If some member of the family does not like turnip, Hubbard squash, or diced beets are alternates. Serve lots of rich smooth giblet gravy with the turkey. A tossed green salad or moulded gelatin salad may be served as well. Steamed pudding with hard sauce is standard dessert fare but a lighter frozen dessert which is perfect to serve would be a strawberry mousse or a fruit salad.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Relax From Day's Tension With These Easy Exercises

Is the Christmas rush getting you down? Today I want to give you two combination exercises. By this I mean that these exercises accomplish more than one happy result, in fact three!

When you come home in the late afternoon put on comfortable loose clothing. You will find these exercises most relaxing. They are also slimming to the waist and corrective to poor posture. They will take the kinks out of you which shopping has put in you.

1. Stand erect. Raise the left arm upward, overhead. Stretch upward as far as you possibly can. Bend the wrist, palm toward the head and keep stretching. Now raise the right arm upward by the right ear. Stretch upward with the right arm. Bend the right wrist, right hand underneath the left, and try to push the left hand even higher. Hold while you count to ten slowly. Repeat, placing the left hand under the right one this time.

2. Again stand erect. Your arms hang at your sides. Bend your wrists so that your palms face the floor. Feel the pull in the forearms. Press down on the air with the palms. At the same time lift your chest and head. Make yourself as tall as possible. Stretch up. Hold while you count to ten slowly. Relax.

Certain exercises are fine for overcoming nervous tension. There is also residual tension in your muscles. Such exercises reduce this. Once you feel limp physically you are apt to feel the same way emotionally and once you feel relaxed emotionally your body will be less tense.

Each reacts on the other and when you have rushed and hurried you are literally tied up in knots physically and nervously. Take these two exercises through the holidays with you and they will be more enjoyable.

If you would like to have my routine for relaxing exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 24, "Exercises for Relaxing." Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Seasonings Add Zest to Christmas Party Foods and Favorite Dishes

Are you sometimes discouraged because everything you cook seems to taste rather flat and uninteresting? Perhaps you have not learned the trick of using herbs and other seasonings. They are the magic wand that fits a plain stew or meat pie from the ordinary into the sublime. For the novice at using spices and herbs one good rule to follow is to use them sparingly. Let them contribute an indefinable, elusive something to a dish without any one being able to pick out just what it is.

Condiments will come in handy when planning those extra special Christmas meals. Incidentally, the term "condiment" may be a little confusing. It is the general term which covers three types of seasonings—spices, seeds and herbs. Among the spices are the old kitchen favorites—pepper, ginger, cloves and cinnamon. The seed condiments probably best known are mustard, celery and anise seeds. When it comes to herbs we find there is quite an array, each with its own special aromatic flavor, which we should learn to make use of in our cooking.

Here are some hints on the types of herbs commonly used by famous chefs to add pungency and zest to favorite dishes. The ones they talk about are the ones most frequently found on your grocer's shelves.

First, there is basil. The Greeks gave it its name, which means "king"—king of herbs. Its flavor goes well with all tomato dishes. Bay leaf is a rather potent herb but used sparingly it adds much to braised beef, soups, or stews. Then, there is rosemary, its distinct pine-like flavor which some like to add occasionally to potatoes, cauliflower or turnip as they are cooking. There is a story that if rosemary flourishes when it is grown indoors it shows that the woman is the master of the house. Whether this is authentic or not, rosemary is a popular herb, for it is also fine to use with roast beef, lamb, pork or veal.

The French "bouquet garni" is really three herbs in one. Three or four sprigs of parsley, the same of thyme and one bay leaf are put together and the little "bouquet" with the thyme on the outside is tied with thread. It is often added to soups and stew but it should be remembered that both thyme and bay leaf are strong flavored so the "bouquet" should not be left in the soup or stew too long.

Make your Christmas meals not only festive but outstanding by using various herbs. Savory is probably the most common one to put in the stuffing for the Christmas turkey. While sage is particularly good with goose, parsley, either fresh or dried, may also be added to dressings. Thyme and marjoram have quite strong flavors, so guide yourself accordingly when using them. By the way, the poultry dressing sold in the shops is a combination of several herbs.

For Christmas entertaining, whether it be a tree-decorating party or an informal supper, a casserole, of chicken and mushroom, will be much enjoyed. Marjoram, used sparingly, adds much to a chicken casserole as does tarragon, while rosemary is delightful in fricassee. Dill is usually thought of in connection with pickles, but it is also good with chicken, particularly with creamed chicken. Party sandwiches or canapés can be given a tantalizing flavor by adding herbs to the spread or to the butter. For example, mix a little basil in the butter for egg sandwiches or add sage to cheese spreads for a different tang. Mint and parsley are good with cheese spreads, too.

Cheery beverages are a must at most Christmas parties and mint is a refreshing addition to many cold drinks.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Operation Only Cure For Eye Cataracts

By EDWIN F. JORDAN, MD

Although cataracts have been discussed in this column on several occasions, this eye condition becomes a matter of extreme importance to many thousands every year. It is almost undoubtedly becoming more and more common.

Mrs. G., for example, says: "I have bilateral cataracts, and am 69 years old. My vision is 20/60, and there seems to be no change that can be made in glasses that will help. Do you think I should be operated on?" Now it is not possible to decide without direct examination, and without knowing all the facts, just when a cataract should be operated on, but the subject can be discussed in general terms. First, what is it?

A cataract involves that portion of the eye which serves as a lens. The lens is normally clear but becomes clouded in cataract and this produces a blurring of vision. Perhaps it can be explained best by comparing it with the lens of a camera. If a camera lens is not clean a picture taken with it will be blurred and "fuzzy."

How much fuzziness there depends on the amount of cloudiness in the lens. If only part of the lens is involved, part of what is seen may be clear and part hazy. If the whole lens is clouded, then all objects will be blurred.

A beginning cataract in which the clouding is slight is called "incipient." When the process of clouding has been completed it is called "ripe," or mature. Unfortunately, medical treatments—that is drugs that have so far been discovered—have not proved of value in dissolving material which clouds the lens, nor can they restore normal vision. Glasses, of course, also cannot remedy the situation.

VISION RESTORED
Operation is the best treatment for cataract. When the lens is mature, it can be removed and full vision restored in uncomplicated cases. Surgery of the eye has been so much improved that it is sometimes possible to remove the lens with a cataract in it at early stages of development.

There is no reason to believe that eyestrain leads to the development of cataract, though, of course, eyestrain should be avoided for other reasons. Heredity, and particularly increasing age, seem to have more to do with most cases of cataract than anything else.

Buchenwald To Be Given Back To Nature

BERLIN (AP)—Buchenwald concentration camp, where more than 100,000 prisoners of the Nazis died in agony and squalor, is being given back to nature.

The Communist government of East Germany has decided to eradicate the infamous horror camp, now lying in disuse, by tearing down all the buildings and covering the area with pine trees. The first plantings will begin in the spring. The job is expected to take two years.

Eagles' Aerie Crowded When Lounge Opens

Members of the Eagles' fraternity, their wives and friends Friday night marked the formal opening of the new lounge and ballroom in their aerie headquarters, 751 View Street.

The lounge was completely modernized and redecorated at a cost of more than $40,000. The work took two months.

About 750 people attended. Ald. Robert Macmillan represented the city. Police Chief John Blackstock and Fire Chief Frank Briers also attended.

Eagles' president Ralph Moore officiated and Les Entwistle was chairman.

Widow's Suit Fails To Upset Transfer To Doctor's Sons

A claim by Mrs. Charlotte Hall, 61, of Vancouver, to set aside the transfer by her late husband, Dr. George A. B. Hall, of property allegedly worth $100,000 to his three sons, was dismissed in Court of Appeal in Vancouver last week.

Dr. Hall, who practiced for many years in Nanaimo, was active in St. John Ambulance Association and civil defense work in Victoria during the war. He transferred the Hall Building in Nanaimo to his sons seven months before his death in 1948. They are Dr. Norman D. Hall, Phoenix, Ariz.; Dr. Earl R. Hall, Vancouver; and Dr. Alan B. Hall, Nanaimo.

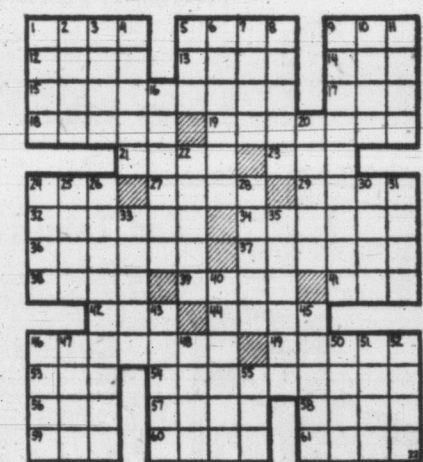

The Court of Appeal judgment upheld the decision of Mr. Justice A. M. Manson, who dismissed Mrs. Hall's action. She was the late Dr. Hall's second wife.

ISLAND DIGEST

LADYSMITH—Social Credit groups throughout Cowichan-Newcastle riding have voted unanimously to support Ladysmith and district fishermen in their appeal to have Vancouver Island's east coast banned to beam trawlers. The fishermen blame improved beam trawl methods for the declining numbers of ling cod and other bottom fish.

LADYSMITH—District 67 School Board reaction to a letter from Education Minister Tilly Rolston asking that there be no over-all increase in school board estimates was pessimistic. C. C. Jones, chairman, said teachers' salaries automatically go up, and that five additional teachers will be required in 1953.

COURTENAY—City council will ask postal authorities to have mail up-Island arriving in Nanaimo on the night boat trucked to Courtenay the same night.

Aldermen agreed that mail service is slower now than when carried by train. Mayor Joseph Hitchen wondered if the local postal staff was large enough considering the increase of mail caused by RCAF expansion at Comox Airport.

PARKSVILLE—Appreciation for their service was expressed to retiring commissioners Fred J. Banks, Frank Avis and William Fulcher at the final meeting for 1952 of the village commission.

YOUBOU—Expansion at the Victoria plywood plant of B.C. Forest Products is expected to speed up operations at the green veneer plant here, and to bring it up to three full shifts instead of one.

PORT ALBERT—West Coast General Hospital will call for tenders for the demolition of the 40-year-old hospital building left vacant this month when patients and equipment were moved to the new $1,000,000 building. All fixtures will be salvaged prior to the razing.

DUNCAN—Salt Spring Island businessmen have taken an option on a used ferry at Port Townsend, Wash., and are prepared to invest $50,000 in the craft if the federal government will spend up to $80,000 to install slipways at Crofton and Vesuvius Bay for the proposed ferry service.

The first steam-propelled boat on the Great Lakes, the Walk-in-the-Water, was launched in 1818.

What Religion Means to Me

MR. W. T. STRAITH

Christ, Greatest Gift Of All the Ages

This is the seventh of a series of articles by well-known Victorians on the meaning of everyday religion in various walks of life. They will appear daily.

By W. T. STRAITH, M.L.A.
Lawyer, Former Minister of Education.

It is good for us, at intervals, to stop and take stock of ourselves, of our spiritual heritage; and it is particularly appropriate at the Christmas season. Indeed, in this western world we are very richly endowed with material things in contrast to peoples of other continents; and we have come to think of these things too much as products of our human efforts and too little as the bounty from a higher and divine source.

We hear many thinking people decrying Christmas because it appears to have degraded into a mutual exchange of material gifts, many of which are extravagant and superfluous. To people who think thus, it appears that the world around them has forgotten that Christmas has, as its heart and soul, the memory of the greatest "Gift" of all time, 2000 years ago. If we should forget and neglect this central meaning of Christmas, then this festive season could become just a pagan and material celebration; but, I am not a sceptic in this regard for we are surrounded by ample evidence to the contrary. The first Christmas was celebrated by the gift of a Child, and as long as this season remains child-centred and manger-centred, our own children will help us to keep the emphasis on the sacred and religious nature of the annual celebrations.

New Emphasis on the Deeper Value

It is true, of course, that much of our time is occupied just before Christmas in worries about our purchases; and a great many people find their period of greatest business activity at this season. However a multitude of our people also find gainful employment throughout the year, and particularly in December, in preparation for the Christmas period; and their dinner pails are important, too.

But apart from these material considerations, a new emphasis is found at the end of each year upon the richer and deeper values in life—particularly I would mention the enrichment of home and family relationships; to say nothing of the outpouring of generosity toward those who are in need. This latter characteristic of the Christmas season, with its refining influence for the donors, probably yields greater benefit in the spiritual satisfaction to them, than the measure of material benefit to the recipients.

It is frequently said that a great many people see the interior of their churches only twice a year—at Easter and at Christmas. If such be the case, then we can hardly over-

Mainland Action Seen For Chiang Forces

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The head of the U.S. military assistance advisory group today hinted broadly that he expects to see Nationalist Chinese forces in action next year.

Maj.-Gen. William Chase told a cheering luncheon group: "I make no promises and no prophecies but I think business will pick up next year—and I think you know what I mean."

President Chiang Kai-shek presided.

Chase said he had talked with President-elect Eisenhower, particularly about the Nationalist armed forces, when Eisenhower visited Korea.

Earlier today Chiang told 54,000 officers and men of his Nationalist armed forces that he hoped

Russia Blamed for Death of 15,000

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressional committee recommended today that Russia be arraigned before the International Court on charges of murdering 15,000 Poles during the Second World War in the Katyn forest massacre.

In a report to the House, a special committee which investigated the killings in eastern Russia said also that the incoming Congress should undertake an immediate investigation of Communist atrocities against United Nations troops in Korea.

City Would Tax Workers Who Reside Out of Town

Currie Findings Won't Change Cabinet - PM

Rejects Reports 'Shuffles' in Wind

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today there will be no cabinet shuffles arising from the Currie Report.

Talking with reporters after a three-hour cabinet session, he was asked about reports that Defense Minister Claxton might be moved to another portfolio, making other shifts necessary. He replied:

"There have been no such suggestions made to me and if there were I wouldn't be disposed to consider them."

Mr. St. Laurent said the Currie report was not among the subjects discussed at the cabinet session today but that it is under consideration and will remain under consideration until the army conditions it portrays are corrected.

The report, pivot of a hot parliamentary controversy, describes "a general breakdown" in the army works services. All three parties on the opposition side of the Commons have demanded that Mr. Claxton be shifted from the defense portfolio as a result of it.

Savage Storm Whips Crippled CPR Freighter

A savage storm with winds in excess of 60 miles an hour drove the crippled CPR freighter Maple Cove today as the Victoria deep-sea tug Island Sovereign closed the gap between the two ships to 500 miles.

The tug is plowing through heavy weather but making good time, and is expected to reach the ship late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

Maple Cove was due in Vancouver today, but her rudder broke down Thursday, and a jury rig failed. The crew is still endeavoring to make temporary repairs pending arrival of the tug.

The weathering St. Catharines reported gale force winds ranging from 60 knots to 38 knots, and a storm center moving toward the B.C. coast. A second storm is making behind the present disturbance, promising continued heavy winds in the area where Maple Cove awaits help.

When Island Sovereign reaches the ship, she will put a line aboard and keep the freighter on the proper course. Both ships will use their engines, the freighter easing to a speed a little slower than the tug, to keep the tow line taut.

Brodie Twins Continue to Fight for Life

CHICAGO (AP)—The Brodie Siamese twins aren't gaining in their tenacious fight for life.

The Illinois hospital where the head-tied twins were separated in a 12-hour 40-minute operation Wednesday reported in a Sunday afternoon bulletin:

"The condition of Rodney, the stronger of the two 15-month-old twins, remains critical. The condition of Roger is still precarious and his struggle for existence seems to have come to a complete halt. There has been no change for the better or worse in the last 15 hours."

"The condition of the boys apparently is static, but a change for the better or worse may occur momentarily. We're heartened by their remarkable stamina and that they're clinging to life this long."

Fisherman 67th Gas Death in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Gust Jalmar Johnson, 65-year-old fisherman, was found dead in his gas-filled room Sunday. Both jets of a gas plate were turned on full. It was the 67th gassing death in Vancouver this year.

He's Ready for Long Flight

A world traveller at the age of five, Lars-Erik Sandstrom was ready today to step aboard a Trans-Canada Airlines plane at Patricia Bay airport—his destination, Copenhagen. Lars-Erik will make the 6,500-mile journey all by himself, but stewardesses, captains, and co-pilots will keep a watchful eye on him as he flies TCA to New York, and Scandinavian Air Lines the rest of the way. The little fellow is no stranger to air travel, as he flew here from Holland with his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hansen four months ago. He is going to visit his grandmother, Mrs. Laurie Hansen, in Copenhagen, and his mother hopes to join him later. He will arrive in Denmark Christmas Eve. Arrangements for Lars-Erik's trip were made by Capital Travel Service. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

BENNETT REVIVES PATTULLO PLAN

Former Liberal Premier Launched Move To Take Over Yukon Territory in 1937

By GORDON FORBES

In proposing northward extension of British Columbia to take in the Yukon, Premier W. A. C. Bennett is reviving an idea first pursued by ex-premier T. D. "Duff" Pattullo in 1937.

It was April 26, 1937, that B.C. newspapers blazoned with headlines: "B.C. May Take Over Yukon Territory."

Premier Pattullo had just returned from Ottawa and announced he had "reached an agreement" with federal authorities under which the Yukon Territory—207,076 square miles in extent—would be transferred to B.C.

But later on, faced with opposition to his plan from Tories and within his own party, the then premier asked Ottawa for postponement of the proposal until the general financial situation was studied.

The air force has released the names of 41 victims and said the remainder will be released as quickly as possible.

The huge plane crashed into the sage-brush dotted desert of central Washington moments after taking off in a snowstorm from Larson Air Force base for Kelly Air Force base, San Antonio, Tex.

The big plane, carrying servicemen home for the holidays, faltered as it reached the end of the runway, labored about 100 feet into the air, then shuddered to earth with a tearing crash. Gasoline from its huge wing tanks spilled onto the frozen ground and burst into flames.

Royal Family Entrains for Sandringham

LONDON (AP)—The Queen left by train today to spend Christmas at the Royal estate in Sandringham.

Gay holiday crowds at King's Cross railway station saw the Royal party off and serenaded them with shouts of "Happy Christmas."

The Queen, wearing a grey suit with a three-quarter-length coat, was accompanied by her two children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, her sister Princess Margaret and her grandmother, Queen Mary.

The Duke of Edinburgh flew to Sandringham Sunday. The Queen Mother will join the family Tuesday.

"M'gettin' used t' bein' taxed fer livin' in places, but under the new charter Victoria aims t' tax y' fer NOT livin' there."

See where B.C. an' Alberta want t' take in part o' th' Yukon's population. They won't be th' first folks taken in by Social Credit.

Them robbers at th' bakery might's well hev marked the safe, "not t' be opened till Christmas."

Red Proposal Against U.S. Rejected by UN

Would Blame U.S. In PW Deaths

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations Assembly in a wearied, pre-dawn vote today turned down a Russian demand for condemnation of the United States for the alleged mass murder of Communist prisoners on Pongam Island in Korea.

Immediately after—at 4.45 a.m.—the assembly adjourned until Feb. 24, after the inauguration of President-elect Eisenhower of the U.S.

Red-eyed after a tense all-night debate, assembly delegates voted 45 "nays" to five Soviet-bloc "yeas" against the Russian proposal. Ten members of the Arab-Asian bloc abstained. The other three in that group—Iraq, Lebanon, and Thailand—voted against the Soviet move.

The Soviet bloc gained no support outside of its own tight little group for the resolution, which was denounced by U.S. delegate Ernest A. Gross as a "sickening" and "shabby midnight propaganda stunt."

Gross, replying to charges launched at midnight Saturday by Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko, said the riot on Dec. 14 in which 87 persons were killed was engineered to help the Kremlin cover up the fact that "the aggressors and their sponsors have rejected peace in Korea."

He said the guards fired at the rioting Reds to quell them and to avoid greater casualties.

Secrecy Clouds Globemaster Crash Probe

Moses Lake, Wash. (UP)—High-ranking air force investigators were to examine the grisly wreckage of a C-124 Globemaster today to determine what caused the big plane to crash Saturday and take 86 of its passengers to their death.

The investigating team—which includes four generals—ordered a strict blanket of secrecy thrown over their investigation of the crash.

All survivors, excluding the most serious cases, are being thoroughly questioned. Many are wondering if they will be released in time to go home for Christmas.

Authorities said at least six of the 39 survivors are in serious condition.

The air force has released the names of 41 victims and said the remainder will be released as quickly as possible.

Two Seattle Men Die in Air Crash

OH FOR THE 'LIFE' OF FIDO!

New 'Fountain of Youth' Serum Going to the Dogs

VIENNA (Reuters)—Dr. Friedrich Kubasta, a veterinary surgeon, claims he has found a "fountain of life" for dogs.

Kubasta said Sunday he had developed his rejuvenating serum working on the basis of the "long life" serum ACS antireticular cytotoxic serum for humans, discovered by the late Russian scientist Alexander Bogomolev.

He used it on several breeds of dogs, ridding them of all signs of old age. All the dogs had been carefully watched and months after the cure there was no sign of old age returning.

In one case a 12-year-old dog, suffering from falling sight, lack of energy and bad temper, recovered after seven weeks' treatment with the serum. It regained its sight, was lively and good tempered and lost the grey hairs around its muzzle.

Kubasta said his treatment restored the elasticity of tissues which bind the muscles and helped the functioning of the glands. The treatment was not merely a temporary stimulation of the animal's functions, he added. He declined to give other details.

New Charter Would Hit Commuters

Power to tax persons earning their living in Victoria but residing outside city limits will be asked of the provincial government by Victoria City Council.

City Solicitor Arthur Patton gave notice today of an application to be made to the government at its next session for a private act for Victoria, and the tax move is one of six concessions sought.

The corporation also wants power to permit car passing on the right where street lanes are provided.

Council approved the application at a special "in camera" session following a regular council meeting.

NO DISCUSSION
No discussion as to possible imposition of the tax on outsiders working in Victoria took place, according to Ald. Brent Murdoch, one of the strongest opponents to the existing poll tax on city residents.

"It would be four times as bad as the poll tax," he said today. "However I am not opposed to the city having the power, but I would oppose imposition unless the city was facing very unusual circumstances."

Ald. Murdoch felt city business men would wind up paying any tax levied at outsiders working in the city. He said owing to the shortage of skilled help, a business man would have to agree to pay the tax before people would take jobs.

LONG-STANDING PLAINT
The city fathers have for years vigorously protested the situation whereby persons "working and earning their living in the city, reside outside and pay nothing for maintenance of facilities they use daily."

The private act is being sought also.

To validate an agreement between the corporation and Hallet and Carey (B.C.) Limited, purchasers of Ogden Point grain elevator providing for continuance of a fixed valuation on the elevator, for municipal-taxation purposes.

To obtain powers to set aside corporate lands for auto-parking for employees, officials and persons doing business with the corporation.

To obtain powers to deal with buildings to be erected and used exclusively for auto-parking.

To repeal a section of the 1923 Victoria City Act whereby the onus of providing plans in cases of requests for tax exemption on church property, is placed on the applicant rather than the city works department.

At present, applicants provide the plans but the city has no power to enforce it.

One of the victims was identified as Stephen Boyd of Seattle, pilot of the plane. The other was identified as 88-year-old L. O. Helgeson, also from Seattle.

Three other resolutions were also drawn up and adopted.

They were:

1. Immediate withdrawal of provincial police from Louisa and the arrest of special officer Paul Benoit and other officers who used revolvers and night sticks to disperse strikers.

2. That a royal commission of inquiry be set up to investigate the circumstances surrounding the riot at Louisa.

3. That Labor Minister Barrett insist upon the return to work of all strikers as soon as possible and to insist upon the right of the syndicate to represent the employees of the Associated Textiles and determine salaries and working conditions.

Some 200 delegates to the meeting, held behind closed doors, adopted the principle of a resolution calling for a general work stoppage, leaving to the CCCL executive body and a committee of representatives of affiliated syndicates the task of fixing strike conditions.

500 in Danger As Waves Pound French Vessel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP)—The grounded French liner Champollion, pounded by breakers as it listed on a shifting sandbank, tonight was almost broken in two. Her 500 passengers are still aboard.

Watchers lining the shore saw a giant crack in the 12,546-ton vessel's hull widening as the waves thrashed into her.

Several attempts have been made to guide the ship's lifeboats through the raging surf. One boatload of sailors finally got through, hauling a line up on the beach. But the cable snapped before any of the passengers could be brought ashore.

Most of the passengers are Christmas pilgrims to the Holy land.

Israeli civil and naval crafts were standing by in Haifa, 75 miles south of here, ready to go to the liner's assistance following the outcome of diplomatic negotiations involving Lebanese and French authorities and the United Nations armistice commission.

The Champollion was listing at a 20-degree angle about 600 yards offshore.
